THE PORTE

Furnishes Minister Terrell With Some Information

Regarding the Burning and Pillaging of American Missions—Anxiety Felt in Antonia.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 18, VIA SOFIA, BULGARIA, Nov. 19.—In response to the telegrams sent to Kharput by the United States minister, Mr. Alexander W. Terrell, inquiry into the burning and pillaging of the American missions there, (exclusively announced by the Associated Press on Saturday morning) the porte has furnished some information to Mr. Terrell and additional facts have been obtained from other sources by the United States minister. As Mr. Terrell will communicate direct with the state department at Washington on the subject, the facts in his possession cannot be given out here. But enough is known of the disturbances at Kharput to enable the Associated Press to give the following general outline of the occurrences:

The trouble between the Kurds and Mussulmans at Kharput had been brewing for some time. On the other hand it was claimed that the Armenians, incited by the agents of their revolutionary committee, had been arming themselves, holding secret meetings and preparing for revolt against the Turkish authorities. The crisis was to be precipitated by an attack upon the Mussulman quarter. A second version of the affair is that the Turks, acting under instructions from the Yildiz Kiosk officials, if not from the sultan himself, deliberately planned to massacre the Armenians of Kharput.

The Kurds, who were not armed with rifles, were provided with weapons similar to those used by the Turkish soldiery and ammunition was plentifully distributed among them. At a signal agreed upon a quarrel was picked with some Armenians and the attack upon their quarters was commenced. The Armenians, however, had been anticipating an outbreak for some time past. They had armed themselves as well as possible and had barricaded their dwellings and made so determined a resistance that the first attack of the Kurds was repulsed.

As announced in these despatches exclusively at the time, when it first became apparent that a disturbance was imminent, the American missionaries at Kharput applied for protection to Mr. Terrell. The latter called personally at the porte and sent several notes on the subject to the minister of foreign affairs, insisting that the Turkish officials should protect the American missionaries, and notifying the sultan and his ministers they would be held responsible for the safety of the missionaries. In view of these representations, the Turkish officials promised to protect the lives of the missionaries and detailed gendarmes to guard their property, with the following result:

When the Armenians stopped the first attack of the Kurds the latter were so infuriated at the check they had received that they proceeded to the quarter of Kharput, where the American mission is located, and quickly overcoming any opposition of the gendarmes, if there were any presented (a point which has not been definitely ascertained) they ransacked the houses, including eight of the American mission buildings, and exploded a shell in the house of one of the missionaries. The American missionaries, however, escaped uninjured and placed themselves under the immediate protection of the Turkish governor, who still has them safe under his care. During the pillaging, it has been ascertained beyond doubt, the Kurds were supported by the Turkish troops in a number of instances and in other cases the soldiers remained passive spectators of the rioting. Later a strong and successful attack was made by the Kurds upon the Armenian quarter, and a terrible massacre followed. The number of victims has not yet been ascertained, but it is declared to be enormous. Conservative estimates say that from 800 to 1,000 persons were killed during the rioting.

The American missionaries have formally protested against the destruction of their property to the Turkish authorities and Mr. Terrell, who, when the facts in the case are thoroughly established, will most likely demand that the Americans be compensated for their losses. In fact, it is understood, Mr. Terrell has already been assured that the Turkish government is prepared to do what is right in the case when all sides have been heard and the blame is placed where it belongs.

A fresh fanatical outbreak has occurred at Mooseh, but it was suppressed by the Turkish authorities after forty Armenians had been killed.

There is evidence from many directions that the porte has been frightened by the gathering of the foreign fleets in Salonica bay and by the advice, accompanied by a clear statement of the real situation, received from Germany and Austria, who seem to be acting in accord, into adopting really energetic repressive measures. This state of affairs is commended on all sides.

The situation in southwest Antonia, where the Christians are gathering in large numbers, is inspiring the most grave anxiety, not so much at the Yildiz Kiosk as among the representatives of the powers here, as this outbreak complicates matters in a manner well calculated to create alarm, for it is difficult to see how the Turk can [illegible] by force, which would mean more bloodshed.

A British warship has been ordered to Alexandretta, northern Syria, and the United States cruiser San Francisco, flagship of the European squadron, is expected there daily. In addition, a French warship has been despatched to Beyrout, Syria. The sultan continues to exist in a state of greatest alarm, which is telling terribly on his already much weakened nerves.

Rumors of the discovery of plots against Abdul Hamid's life are now so frequent that they no longer attract much attention, and some of his ministers, it is known, have to be kept constantly guarded by soldiers in order to give them courage enough to transact the business of their respective offices.

Throughout the night of Saturday last, November 16, which was a most critical day for the Turkish empire, the sultan was engaged, sitting close to the telegraph instrument in the Yildiz Kiosk, personally dictating instructions to the different provincial governors to do their utmost to restore order in their districts. This indicates that the sultan has at last had his eyes opened to the character of his advisors and that he has finally determined to take the reins of government in his own hands. The lack of sufficient funds to equip the reserves called out and the scarcity of regular troops in the disturbed provinces is a matter of great concern to the sultan, who is said to be rapidly getting an idea of the extent to which misgovernment has spread, not that this has gone on without his knowledge.

DASTARDLY DEED!

Wreckers Throw a Train From the Track,

Killing the Engineer and Two Tramps—Drew the Spikes From the Rails.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 19.—A deliberate attempt was successfully made at a point one mile west of Rome, at 4 o'clock this morning, to wreck train No. 6, on the New York Central railway, the engine and all of the cars on the train being ditched and completely wrecked.

The engineer of the train, Nate Hager, of Albany, and two tramps were killed. The fireman, Chris Wagoner, of Albany, and Mail Clerks Porter and M. J. McCarthy were injured.

This is the second attempt within three weeks to wreck the same train near the same spot, which is an ideal one for the commission of such a crime.

The wreckers broke into the section tool house and stole some tools, with which they removed the fish plates which fasten the rails to the ties and pulled out the spikes. The train left this city at 3:30 o'clock. It consisted of four mail cars and three sleepers.

There were eleven postal clerks and fourteen passengers aboard, besides the members of the crew. When the crash came the engine was thrown from the track into the ditch and completely submerged in the mire, only the driving wheels on the left side being above the earth. Engineer Hager went down with his engine and must have been instantly killed. The fireman, Chris. Wagner, was badly injured about the head and it is feared that he is internally hurt.

The two tramps who were found dead are supposed to have been stealing a ride on the forward end of the first mail car, directly in the rear of the engine.

LATER.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 19.—John Hildreth and Frederick Bristol, two boys, have been arrested by the Central Hudson detectives at Rome, charged with wrecking train No. 6 this morning. Young Hildreth broke down and confessed that he and Bristol, in company with two boys named Herbert Platto and Theodore Hibbard, committed the crime.

Hi Perrin, who is now located at Muncie, was in the city today, the guest of his brother, John Perrin.

Strikes Chicago and is Headed This Way.

Trains Delayed—Telegraph Communication Interrupted—Zero Weather Within Twenty-Four Hours.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—Many people in this section and west of here have for many days been calling loudly for a change in the weather. They found it when they arose this morning. Snow began falling heavily in the far northwest yesterday, and chased along by a cold wave and high wind came to this section in a hurry. At 3 o'clock this morning a mild rain was falling. Soon after that hour, however, the cold wind changed the situation and snow and sleet has been coming down since. The streets are covered with over three inches of mixed mud and snow; street traffic in the city is hampered and pedestrians are having a terrible time.

Telegraph and telephone wires are covered with a mass of slush and swollen to four times their usual size. As a result of this storm, telegraphic communication with the northwest and many points west is seriously interrupted, wires having been broken and, in places, poles pulled down by the strain.

Trains are delayed on several railroads, west and north, the storm having been most unexpected and of such a nature as to render the pulling of heavy trains very difficult.

From the Manitoba line, zero weather is reported. It is rapidly moving south and east and at the present rate will extend over the entire upper lake region, the upper Mississippi and lower Ohio and Missouri valleys during the next twenty-four hours.

PURCELL BURNING.

Very Little of the Town Can be Saved.

Several Persons Perish—Fire in a New York Candle Factory—One Man Lost.

PERRY, O. T., Nov. 19.—Just after 3 o'clock this morning the north side of the city of Purcell, I. T., caught fire and the flames are still raging. Three-fourths of the town is in ashes and if the wind continues to blow as it is from the north, very little of the town can be saved.

Purcell is located on the bank of the South Canadian river on a high hill, and the wind has full sway. It is reported at this time that several persons perished in the flames.

NEW YORK Nov. 19.—Fire in a six-story factory building at 98 Clinton street today caused a panic among the working people employed there, who numbered about 200. One person is known to have perished and there may have been others who met a similar fate. The basement, in which the flames started, was occupied as a candle factory and the tallow there caused the fire to spread rapidly, cutting off egress by way of the stairs.

One of the most enjoyable events of the season in east end social circles was the celebration of the twenty sixth birthday of Frank M. Rhodes, at his pleasant home, 131 Hanna street. The affair was gotten up by Mrs. Rhodes and her sisters, the Misses Bates, and it was a complete surprise upon the host, who suspicioned nothing until the guests arrived in a body, about 8:30 o'clock. The guests left a substantial reminder of their visit in the shape of [illegible] ing as spokesman for them in the presentation. An orchestra was present and furnished music for dancing and the younger portion of the guests indulged in that past time, while the elder ones devoted a portion of the evening to pedro.

SANTA FE, N. M., Nov. 19.—Jesus Vialoondo and Feliciano Chavez, convicted of murdering Thomas Martinez, a ranchman, January 20, 1895, were executed here this morning, in the presence of 1,000 people. The scaffold was erected in a valley, three blocks north of the Palace hotel, and at dawn the crowd began to assemble. Vialpondo was taken from jail to the gallows at sunrise. He was very much agitated and prayed continuously. His neck was broken by the fall when the trap was sprung.

Chavez addressed the crowd twenty minutes, saying evil associations has cost him his honor and life. He stepped briskly to the trap and died almost without a tremor, his neck also being broken by the fall. Vialpondo and Chavez killed Martinez because he detected them stealing his cattle.

AGONY OF CHRIST

Must be Experienced by All Christians.

Theme of Dr. Chapman's Sermon Last Night—Prayer More Effective Than Preaching.

Dr. Chapman was greeted by another big crowd at the Princess rink last night. There were present between 2,500 and 2,800 people. The jam and crush that marked the Sunday night gathering was not repeated last night, better arrangements and facilities for entrance and exit being employed. Last night all the doors were used and the crowds came and departed easily and without the slightest trouble.

Before commencing his sermon Dr. Chapman made an important announcement regarding the opening of the doors hereafter. He said that whenever any considerable number of people gathered in front of the rink the doors would be thrown open and they could enter and take seats. But he wanted those early comers to understand and agree that if they should take a seat belonging to an usher they must move when requested to do so and he did not want them to feel offended if they should be requested to move. He explained that everything possible would be done for the comfort of the audience at each meeting.

Mr. Chapman took his text from the forty-fourth verse of the twenty-second chapter of Luke: "And being in an agony He prayed more earnestly and His sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground."

Unbelievers, said Dr. Chapman, read the Bible and they frequently pause and put a question mark after certain verses. They find something they cannot understand and they mark it as one thing that causes them to disbelieve the Bible. They always mark the verse of the text because they say that it is a physical impossibility for a man to sweat blood. But Jesus Christ did sweat blood. I believe it because the Bible says so.

Mr. Chapman gave such a graphic and spirited description of the agony of Christ in the Garden of Olives that it almost seemed his words were inspired.

It was the central thought of Dr. Chapman's discourse that to receive fully the spirit of the word and truth of God we must experience the same agony that Christ did. Then we pray more earnestly, and it is such prayer that saves men's souls. Oh, that I knew the meaning of such agony, said the speaker. If we preachers could only feel as Christ felt at that time we would need nothing else to bring men to God. The people would flock to the Father as doves to their window.

I do not believe that great preaching, even by the Apostle Paul himself, can ever start an awakening. But we must know how to pray as Christ prayed when in His agony. Did you ever pray thus? I believe that you hold the key to the situation, and that it is your praying and not my preaching that will start the awakening. I ask you to have such a spirit and I promise you, as the servant of God, that you will receive great blessing.

An old elder came to our meeting where I was once preaching. It was in the winter season. We had been together for two or three days. Near the close of one of our meetings the old man rose and said: "One thing I will do before we meet again." He seemed to be feeling very deeply. We learned at length what that one thing was. It was to visit a blacksmith who lived four miles away and ask him to come to Christ. Next morning there was a snow storm, but the old man hitched up to the cutter and drove to the shop. The blacksmith went down to see what he wanted. He found him standing inside, pale and trembling, tears streaming down his face. He asked him what was the matter and he could only say: "I come to ask you to come to Christ, I promised your father when he was dying that I would try to bring you to the Savior," and here his voice was choked by his sobs and he could say no more. He drove home and sadly told his wife that he had made a failure of his mission. God did not regard it that way. That night the blacksmith was in church and rose when he had the opportunity and told of the visit he had had that day and gave his heart to Christ. God always honors such prayer, such agony as this.

I have no trouble in believing the Bible. I believe that Jesus Christ suffered the agony and that He did sweat great drops of blood. And if I could but say two words as He said His prayers I would ask no other means of winning men to God. If I could but speak the words "lost" and "eternity," in the same agony! The theme of the sermon will show you how God feels about lost souls.

I have very little confidence in the men and women who profess to believe the Bible but who do nothing to save men. You will never win men until you have the spirit of the text. I don't believe you can preach people into the church; if I thought I could I would preach here until I dropped. But we can pray them in. Some people will say: "How am I going to get this truth?" It is the natural result of being filled with the spirit of Christ.

It is strange that you can believe the Bible when your husband and your boy are lost and you are indifferent. If my little boy were in danger I would give my life to save him. Your boy is in danger of judgment. What are you doing to save him."

BIT BY A DOG.

A Suit in Justice France's Court for Damages.

A Jefferson Township Woman Fined—Many Marriage Licenses—News in the Courts.

The case of Rudolph Gunthers against Herman Rust for $100 damages was tried before Justice France this morning and a judgment rendered for $4. The dog of the defendant bit the little daughter of the plaintiff and she was confined to her home for two weeks. C. Holder represented the plaintiff and J. M. Robinson the defendant.

Justice Tancey fined Sarah Jackson $20 and costs for keeping a house of ill fame in Jefferson township. Her eleven-year-old daughter, Maude, was sent to the reform school by Judge O'Rourke. Affidavits may be filed against several men for visiting this place of Mrs. Jackson.

Justice France fined Andrew Schlenker $2 and costs for drunkenness.

In the circuit court this morning Judge O'Rourke sentenced Harry Stone to jail for ninety days for larceny, John Herring, larceny, sixty days, and set the trial of Albert Russell, charged with forgery, for November 26.

Negotiations are on foot by which the county commissioners will probably soon purchase the New Haven gravel road for $4,700, the appraised value.

County Clerk Metzgar has issued the following marriage licenses: Albert Randall and Edith Sheehan, Miles Hanchett and Katie E. Robinson, James Merkling and Mary E. Hess, William E. Hatch and Ella Wolfe, Peter E. Schneider and Cora E. Holwarth, Alonzo L. Gregg and Minerva Scheddner, Harvy Shirey and Anna Bahrdt.

It is said that Mrs. Ernest Sauerwein, the Bloomingdale woman who created a sensation some time ago by eloping with a man named Von, taking with her her two children and about $1,100 of her husband's money, has made another break. It will be remembered that the woman was found in Minneapolis with her children and that Sheriff Clausmeier brought them back and that the husband and wife made up again. This was several weeks ago. Now, the report says, Mrs. Sauerwein has left again and gone to Cincinnati. The object of her visit to that city was [illegible]

A WINCHESTER

Prevented a Jail Delivery Early This Morning.

Duffy and Sheridoo Were Sawing Out of Jail When the Officers Stopped Them.

If it had not been for the vigilance and watchfulness of Sheriff Clausmeier and Deputy Sheriff Harrod last night there would have been a wholesale jail delivery at the county jail. Two desperate prisoners had laid the plans well and were executing the work with great diligence and skill when they were caught at it. They had progressed so far that they could almost smell the air of freedom, but thanks to the watchfulness of the sheriff and deputy they are now further than ever from the goal.

Henry Duffy and Thomas Sheridoo were the men who were doing the work that was intended to be the means of liberating about eighteen criminals. Duffy is the man who is awaiting trial for being implicated in the shooting of Deputy Sheriff Harrod last summer, in which melee Walrath was killed, and for implication in which the man Stone has been sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary. Stone is still in the Allen county jail, but is kept in another apartment and away from Duffy. Sheridoo is a man who is serving long time in the jail for shoving a revolver under the nose of a Pittsburg brakeman some time ago.

It was suspected yesterday by Sheriff Clausmeier and Deputy Harrod that these men were arranging to make an attempt to escape and it was decided to watch them and nip the plan. So Harrod stood watch last night and his vigilance was rewarded.

At about 2:15 o'clock this morning Harrod went to the door leading from the jail office to the corridor and peeped through the wicket. There, inside the corridor, he saw two men on their knees industriously sawing away at one of the iron bars that separate the inner from the outer corridors. Duffy was operating the saw while Sheridoo was holding the bar and steadying it. While they were in that position and before they could rise to their feet, Harrod poked a Winchester repeating rifle through the door and ordered them to hold up their hands, which they did with great alacrity. They were ordered to throw the saw out through the bars and they did it. Then they were searched.

The saw with which they were doing the work was a small affair of the hardest streel. They had made a handle out of some heavy wire which had been handed to them by some one outside or in the bum room. When the cells of the men were searched three more saws of the same kind were found in their bedticks. Only one had been used, but with it they had sawed off two steel bars each an inch thick.

It was the intention of the men to get into the outer corridor and then throw the lever that opens all the doors on the south row of cells, thus liberating all the eighteen prisoners in that department. When Duffy was questioned by the officers after the thing was over he said: "You can't blame me for trying to get out. I would like to get out of this place." That is no doubt true. Duffy also remarked that he was much obliged to Harrod for not pulling the trigger of the Winchester.

Duffy and Sheridoo have both been put back in their cells and will not be allowed out in the corridors any more. The officers will take no more chances with them.

This is the third time that attempts at jail delivery have been foiled by Sheriff Clausmeier and Deputy Harrod. None of the other attempts came so near being successful as did this one this morning. If these men had had a few more minutes to work they would have succeeded in their design, but the vision of a Winchester containing sixteen large bullets was enough to stop them.

ANOTHER BIKE STOLEN.

This Time A. C. Katt is the Loser of a Wheel.

A. C. Katt, the bicycle dealer, would like for some fellow to bring back a wheel which he rented yesterday. The young fellow rented the wheel to go and find some relatives in South Wayne, but he seems to be having a great lot of difficulty in finding them, as he has not yet returned. The wheel was a Century Niagara, No. 9,258, the number being marked on the under side of the crank. There seems to be no end to the stealing of bicycles in this city.

AFTER THE BOYS.

Police Will Stop the Practice of Jumping on Trains.

The police are after the boys who make a practice of jumping on trains. This practice among the boys has become so great that it is necessary for the officers to stop it. Hereafter a close watch will be kept and every boy caught climbing on trains will be arrested. If they cannot be arrested at the trains they will be taken from their homes with warrants. This determination on the part of the officers should serve as a warning to the boys and cause them to quit the risky business.

He has had some experience in postoffice work and is well liked by the public in general.

A STOLEN WHEEL

Is Sold by William Moore at Huntington.

Moore Arrested and Brought to This City—Claims He Traded a Gold Watch for It.

The man who is supposed to have stolen William Ygey's bicycle from in front of Kane's store, on Calhoun street, last Saturday noon, was captured at Huntington last night and Superintendent Liggett went there this morning and brought him to this city. The man gives his name as William Moore, of Columbus, Ohio. He claims he traded a gold watch to some man on the street here Saturday for the wheel. The bicycle was found at Huntington, where Moore had sold it for $15, and Superintendent Liggett brought it along with him. Ygey identified it as his wheel. Moore is in the police station awaiting trial.

CREMATORY TESTED.

A Sheep Carcass Consumed in a Short Time.

The Crematory in Lindenwood Cemetery Has Been Completed—Its Construction and How It Works.

The new crematory which has just been completed in Lindenwood cemetery, was given a test yesterday afternoon in the presence of a number of persons, including the builder, Dr. L. M. Davis, of Lancaster, Pa.; Architect Wing, members of the cemetery association, newspaper men and other visitors.

The crematory stands on the side of a small hill, about in the center of the cemetery, and the building that has been erected for it is a very handsome little structure of the Roman style of architecture, built entirely of stone.

The crematory is a success, according to the test made yesterday. The construction of the furnace and the retort are of much interest. The furnace is situated at the west end of the building, immediately at the rear of the retort in which the body to be cremated is placed. The fuel used is coke, which furnishes a white heat. The retort is built of fire clay and in shape is very similar to an ordinary bake oven in a bakery. The heat that is furnished by the coke fire is obliged to make three complete circuits around the retort before it reaches the chimney, and this insures that every particle of smoke will be consumed, as well as the gases that are distilled from the body. A strong draft is furnished by means of the large chimney and four one and one half inch pipes, which are in the furnace.

Yesterday the furnace was fired up at 10 o'clock in the morning and at 1 o'clock it was hot enough to make a test. However, it was delayed until 4:30 in order that the interested parties might all be present.

A carcass of a large sheep was used in making the test. It was placed in a long tray together with a number of big, heavy beef bones. When Dr. Davis gave the word, the tray was shoved into the open door of the retort, where a heat of 2,500 degrees awaited it. Even before the tray had fully entered the retort the body was on fire and was being consumed. The carcass was wrapped in a cloth that had been saturated with alum water. This alum water holds the fibres of the cloth intact in spite of the fact that the cloth is instantly consumed by the intense heat, and when the incineration has been completed the remaining particles of the cloth can be removed and the ashes of the body taken out.

The cremation of the sheep was completed before 8 o'clock last night and the heavy beef bones were reduced to ashes in a short time afterward.

Dr. Davis said to THE SENTINEL reporter that the time required for the incineration of a human body varies. If the bones in the body are hard and full of earthy matter it takes longer than when they contain a large amount of animal matter. The usual time, he says, is from one and a half to two hours.

The cost of this crematory is about $5,600, of which $1,800 was paid for the furnace and retort. It is the first crematory ever built in the state of Indiana.

It might be of interest to state here that there is in this city a compact of some of the most prominent citizens who have agreed that when their bodies are to be disposed of it shall be by the process of incineration. This compact was formed several years ago and since that time one of the members has died. His body was taken to a crematory in another city and cremated. It was largely due to the influence of these gentlemen that the new crematory was erected in Lindenwood cemetery.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

"Nearly all last winter I was sick in bed, and was attended by different physicians; none cured me, none helped me very much. Our County's Farmers.

Elsewhere in THE SENTINEL today we publish the program for the farmers' institute for Allen county, which is to be held in this city on the 16th and 17th of December, and we hope the meeting will be largely attended, for it will without doubt be interesting and instructive, for such have been the characteristics of these meetings in the past.

The subjects discussed by prominent farmers, we notice by glancing over the program published, includes such topics as "How to Restore and Maintain the Fertility of the Soil," "Cultivation of the Apple for Profit," "Substitutes for Hay," "Strawberry Culture," "The Hen for Profit," "Can We Raise Hogs and Corn and Retain the Fertility of the Soil," and others of a similar nature, all of which, being talked and written about by men who are practical agriculturalists, can not fail in bringing out much valuable information on these themes and result to those present in making their avocations more profitable.

Men in other occupations in life, the manufacturer, the merchant, the lawyer, the doctor, the editor, the mechanic, the author, the railroader, all meet for the interchange of ideas looking to the advancement of each in their respective callings, and it is right and proper and beneficial that the farmer should do so, and we are glad to see these annual gatherings of the farmers increasing and extending into every state of the union. They will result in spreading intelligence and raising the standard of farming wherever they are held, and when this is done the whole country will be benefited. Education in farming pays. It makes a man a better farmer and it enables him to get more and better products out of the soil and benefits him in every way, socially and financially.

The farmer is an important factor in this nation of ours. He is an important factor in our state and county. The products that he raises from the soil are the necessaries of life and his prosperity is therefore vital to the welfare of the whole people. Our standing as a nation, state and county is largely due to our agriculture. No nation or community has ever prospered that ignored this element of its growth and vitality, and in all history the influences that led to the improvement of the agricultural classes have been the influences that caused the prosperity of the masses. Meetings then where the farmer is educated in his special calling, where one exchanges ideas with another as to the best systems to be pursued, are to be encouraged and they should be attended by every farmer who desires to obtain the best results from his work.

"The harvest is past, the summer is ended," and now is the time for intelligent thought and action among farmers, and there is no better aid to this line of agricultural progress than the farmers' institute. The season for their sessions has begun and they will, in their enlarged and ennobled form, reach nearly every county in Indiana, stimulating thought and leading on to a more enlightened and improved stage of agriculture.

IN his paper, the Wabash Plaindealer, of last evening, Chas. A. Hass announces the candidacy of Hon. Warren G. Sayre, of that city, for the republican nomination for governor, and prints a strong editorial endorsing him. Mr. Sayre was formerly speaker of the house. He makes the ninth candidate now in the field for the republican nomination for governor, and he will have the solid support of the Eleventh congressional district.

THE revival meetings which are being held by Dr. Chapman are attracting much attention all over the city, creating such a spiritual awakening as Fort Wayne has never before experienced, and they will result in great good. Dr. Chapman is full of the power of the Holy Ghost and has a wonderful faculty of impressing this spirit upon his audiences.

EX-SENATOR EDMUNDS tells republicans that "the tariff had better be left alone." He says that the commercial and industrial interests of the country are very sensitive on the subject of change, and that the revenue should be increased in some other way, not by higher duties. In taking this position Senator Edmonds is right.

SENATOR ALLISON'S platform as a candidate for the republican presidential nomination is very simple and has the great merit of candor and dignity. He says: "I want it, but I shall not scramble for it."

New Applications of Electricity.

Professor A. E. Dolbear gives in The Cosmopolitan Magazine some interesting information as to recent uses to which electricity has been put. It is known already that the electric current is employed in bleacheries. Professor Dolbear tells us it may be used with equal advantage to whiten discolored teeth and sallow skin. The basis of the new use is the well known fact that when an electric current passes through a liquid more or less chemical decomposition takes place. If the liquid be a solution of some metal, the solution will be destroyed, and the pure metal will be deposited on the surface toward which the current flows. This is the method by which electroplating is done.

The electricity parts the molecules of metal from their solution and pushes them, by actual physical motion, in the direction of the current.

If two liquids are put into jars, and one of the jars is sufficiently porous, a strong electrical current will drive the particles of the one liquid into those of the other through the porous substance. Applying this principle by skillful apparatus devised for the purpose, decolorizing fluids may be driven into teeth and skin. The decolorizer, whatever it may be, is placed upon the surface that needs whitening. Then an electrical current is applied to it, and the decolorizer is thus driven in through the skin or through the enamel of teeth without doing any injury.

If this discovery be really practicable, there will be no need in future of anybody's having either unsightly looking teeth or skin.

A Happy Thought.

A Washington club has a "professional entertainer." When out of town friends pounce upon busy men at the capital and expect the sights to be shown them and to be dined, wined and taken to Mount Vernon and to see the president's country house, as well as the knee breeches of George Washington in the Smithsonian institution, the busy man introduces the out of town friend to the professional entertainer. The entertainer takes the guest off the busy man's hands. All the honors expected to be done by the busy man are bestowed on the guest by the professional. He is graceful and accomplished; he knows everything—even some stories that are less than five years old. The busy man attends to his duties; the out of town friend is delighted, and never suspects he has been shunted off upon the entertainer. The entertainer himself gets sufficiently well paid for his services, and all are happy.

Why should there not be professional entertainers for private families too? When heavy and stupid guests and relatives make a descent on us, the expenditure of brain force necessary to entertain them is enough to give one a fit of nervous prostration. If the professional entertainer could only be got at and relieve the unfortunate victim, he would be a blessing untold. The entertainers must be of both sexes to fit all cases. And if people paid this convenient person according to the value of his services he would be a millionaire in five years.

It is certainly to the best interests of England to cultivate a thorough good understanding with the United States.

POTATOES A L'ANNA.

Pare four good sized potatoes. Cut them into blocks the size of dice. Put two tablespoonfuls of butter in a baking dish, put the potatoes in and stir them, so that each piece of potato will be thoroughly covered with the butter. Dust over a teaspoonful of salt, and a saltspoon of pepper. Bake in a moderately quick oven for at least three-quarters of an hour. If any of the butter remains in the pan, carefully remove the potatoes from it, and serve in a hot dish.—Professional.

ORANGE PUFF.

Put into a saucepan four tablespoonfuls sugar, three of flour, one of farina, add gradually a half pint of milk, stir over the fire until thick, then strain it into a saucepan, and add one tablespoonful butter. Stir again over the fire until it leaves the sides of the pan like cream puff batter. Stand aside until cool, then add grated rind of one orange, and yolks of four eggs. Cut slices of bread into round cakes two inches in diameter. Toast them, put on each a tablespoonful of the rabbit mixture, with a knife smooth it to a little mound, dip each quickly in egg, and then in crumbs, and fry in smoking hot fat. Do not have the fat too deep, or they will turn over; fry bread side down; serve hot.—Professional.

Shell and blanch twenty-four almonds. Chop them fine. Seed and chop a quarter of a pound of raisins. Measure and pick over a half cup of dried currants. Put the almonds, raisins and dried currants into a saucepan, add a half cup of water, a half cup of sugar, with a teaspoonful of lemon juice, and the grated rind of the lemon. Simmer gently for at least thirty minutes. In the meantime, pare and core six large apples, keeping them perfectly whole. Stand them in a baking pan, sprinkle over about two tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar, and bake slowly until the apples are tender and slightly brown. Take from the oven, put them in a glass dish. Now, boil the fruit mixture and syrup together for at least ten minutes; that is, boil it hard. Take it from the fire, fill in the spaces from which the cores of the apples have been taken, and baste the syrup over the outside. Stand away to cool. When ready to serve, heap around the outside of the dish, banking it up towards the apples, cream whipped to a stiff froth. Dust the whole with powdered sugar, and serve. —Professional.

NAPOLEON SAT IN IT.

ONE OF THE EMPEROR'S SEVEN THRONES NOW HERE.

He Go Into a Museum at San Francisco —How It Was Saved from Desecration During Franco-Prussian War by a French Patriot.

IT is recorded of Napoleon III. that he once remarked that a throne was nothing but a pile of lumber with gorgeous trappings. Those who have a penchant for attributing to the utterances of great men meanings other than those conveyed in their words say his idea was that a throne requires something more than royal vestments to maintain it. Whatever Napoleon thought of thrones it is not hard to believe at he was fond of them.

He seven scattered around in differe arts of France, so that wherever he as he would be within easy reach of one, and would thus be enabled to appear in the dignity of state with all its pomp before his subjects, and, notwithstanding these seven, it is believed of him that he had an abnormal ambition to gather unto himself more—even though they were the thrones of other rulers.

One of these seven thrones—or, to be m s correct, the chair which formed the greater part of the throne—is now in this country. Far from the land of its creation, it is securely packed away, and in a freight car is making the long journey to San Francisco. There it will go into a museum filled with other antiquities, never again to have the honor of resting a real live emperor.

After the close of the California State Midwinter International Exhibition, which was held in San Francisco, a permanent museum, as a memorial of the exposition, was established. Michael H. de Young, who was president of the exposition, undertook the task of obtaining curios for the museum. The Napoleonic fever being at its height, he secured many relics of the emperor, among them the medals exhibited at the World's Fair.

Needing rest after his arduous labors of the winter, Mr. de Young went to Europe, and in Paris he struck a veritable mine of good things in the way of curios. But most of all he prizes this chair, as to the genuineness of which he was satisfied by Bernard Franck, the well known French expert on all matters pertaining to the late empire.

As far as can be learned it was the chair which graced the Chateau St. Cloud, or that was at Compiegne. As the story runs, it was taken away during the Franco-Prussian war, just before the appearance of the Prussians, by a patriotic Frenchman, who was determined that the chair in which the emperor had seated himself should never be desecrated by falling into the hands of the foes of France. To insure its safety he stored it away in the cellar of his house, and in the consequent turmoil and excitement he forgot all about it.

It was not until after his death, a few years ago, that his relatives, in searching the house, found the chair. Hidden away among what might be termed rubbish for nearly a quarter of a century, it was badly worm-eaten and otherwise soiled; but the family made inquiries, learned the value of the discovery, and, having no use for a throne of their own, sold it to a dealer in antiquities for a nice little sum. The dealer had it reproduced faithfully, put it in his store, and there it was when Mr. de Young found it.

Any one who has noticed the two handsome chairs which are at the entrance to the winter garden in the Hotel Waldorf will hardly need a description of Mr. de Young's treasure, says the New York Herald. They are reproductions of the chair used by the emperor at Fontainbleau. This is similar in all respects, save that the front supports are of plain carved wood, instead of taking the form of caryatides.

It stands about three and one-half feet high, the framework being of carved oak, with heavy gilding, after the fashion of the day. The back shows a circular wreath of oak leaves in the wood, being about two feet in diameter. The center is upholstered in rich crimson velvet, handsomely embroidered with heavy gold thread, with a big N standing out in prominent relief. The seat is of the same crimson velvet, with gold thread embroidery, and on each side, on top of the arm posts, is a heavy globe of satin wood, on which probably Napoleon often rested his hands while listening to the artful flattery of his courtiers. On the wood of the seat, at the back of the chair, is engraved the name of the maker, which is taken as a strong proof of the chair's genuineness. Mr. de Young, however, was careful to get the advice of several experts before purchasing. It came across the sea in the same steamer that carried him, was carefully packed under his eyes, and he saw it safely stored away in the car which will soon land it on the Pacific Coast, where it will gladden the eyes of curio loving San Franciscans.

Women Can Keep Strong and Well by Taking

Dr. Greene's Nervura Blood and Nerve Remedy.

The advent of woman into new occupations brings a new era into her life. Heretofore she had only to encounter the strain of household duties. Broader fields bring to her increased burdens. Her naturally sensitive organism is subject to a new nervous tension. How does it affect her? It brings exhaustion to her nervous energies. It brings weakness and loss of vitality. It adds new dangers to her condition. What does it do to future generations? It robs them of the robust vitality and nervous force they ought to have. It starts them in life the weaker physically and mentally, the result of this condition of her nervous system, weakened and over-wrought as it is It then becomes a vital subject of the welfare of the women—one to which the thoughtful are already giving attention, one of serious moment to all.

It is a duty each woman owes to herself and her children. Given only to household duties that burden, see to it that your over-worked nerves are righted and your exhausted strength regained. Don't delay a single hour. If you are a woman wage earner in any occupation and are over-worked in the duties which weigh upon you, see to it that you keep your nervous force up to its proper standard, that you renew your strength and keep up your power to work. It means health and happiness to you; health for you to do your work and happiners to make life worth living. Attend to it at once.

You have only to use the help nature has provided in that wonderful restorer of health and strength, that powerful invigorator of brain, nerve and body, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. Read what it did for Mrs. F. Cohen, of 153 Pacific St., Newark, N. J.

"I had been sick for three years," writes Mrs. Cohen, "weak, nervous and run down until I didn't care whether I lived or died. A friend of mine advised me to try Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and it has made a new woman of me today. I had the rheumatism in one of my legs, and I could not rest at night until I tried Dr. Greene's Nervura, and I can truly say I am entirely cured. I feel twice as young and all my friends say I don't look like the same person. Nervura has certainly done me a wonderful sight of good."

It is not a patent medicine, but the prescription of the most successful living specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th St., New York City. He has the largest practice in the world, and this grand medical discovery is the result of his vast experience. The great reputation of Dr. Greene is a guarantee that his medicine will cure, and the fact that he can be consulted by anyone, at any time, free of charge, personally or by letter, gives absolute assurance of the beneficial action of this wonderful medicine.

Was a Great General.

The death of Gen. Mahone removes from Washington one of the most picturesque personalities ever known at the national capital—a diminutive man with a foot as small as a girl's and a head topped with a sombrero that dwarfed it and left nothing of the face to view but the piercing eyes and the immense cigar protruding from the mouth; a dandy with frilled shirt and cuffs and with the neatest of boots, but a man devoid of fear and of the keenest of minds. As a soldier, Lee valued him as one of the best of generals, and as a politician he dominated Washington during his career there as senator, and left public life the best hated of men. Gen. Mahone had many of the characteristics of the old-time Virginian, but, as a matter of fact, there was not a drop of Virginian blood in his veins. He was a pure-blooded Irishman.

THE SOLDIERS' HOME.

The Cottage That Our County is Asked to Build.

In establishing the State Soldiers' Home at Lafayette, the plan of the legislature was to appropriate only money sufficient to erect the general buildings, leaving to counties and to charitably disposed societies and individuals the work of erecting cottages, in which the larger proportion of the members of the home will be cared for. These cottages will each bear an inscription, showing by what county or by whom they were erected. It is believed that the erection of the home will relieve a county the size of Allen from an expenditure of several hundred dollars now annually expended for the relief of disabled and destitute soldiers through the offices of the various township trustees, and, if this be so, every county in the state should willingly bear the expense of erecting at least one cottage.

Nearly every county in the state has signified its intention to fall in with the plan of the legislature and several of them have already taken action through their boards of county commissioners. Wabash county is the first to actually get its appropriation into the hands of the board of trustees and last week a committee representing the county made the selection of lot 60 on the plat of the home grounds, for the location of their county cottage.

At the request of persons interested here at Fort Wayne, lot 62 has been temporarily reserved for Allen county, until such time as our county commissioners can act in the matter. It is one of the very best located lots in the entire plat and ought to have a handsome cottage, such as this county is likely to build, to cost $1,000 or more.

The general government pays the state of Indiana $100 yearly for every soldier cared for in a state soldiers' home, and as the state appropriates only $126 per year, the cost to the state is only $26 annually for each soldier thus supported.

FINE EXHIBIT

Given by the Fort Wayne Art School.

Between the hours of 3 and 7 o'clock Saturday afternoon, the students of the Fort Wayne Art school received their friends at their studio on East Lewis street. On the west side of the room the oil studies showed well on a background of dark red, while the east side was devoted to water colors, which were displayed on a background of nile green. Mosses of black and white work filled the corners, the principal studies being drawings from life by Miss Norah Hamilton, executed while under the instructions of Kenyon Cox. Among a number of compositions were The Annunciation, Elijah fed by the Ravens, Judith and Holafernes, Supper at Emmaus, and several decorative studies. While in New York, Miss Hamilton was for several months a student of Robert Reid, leader of the impressionistic school, and a study in oil of the head of a young girl, painted under his instructions, is especially worthy of mention. A number of oil sketches of local and Mackinac scenery were much admired.

Several portraits of Fort Wayne people occupied a prominent place; also a portrait of a Mackinac Indian, who is said to be over 100 years old. On a screen was displayed the work of the Sketch club, consisting of pencil, pen and ink and charcoal studies from life. A number of charcoal studies done by the drawing class in Mackinaw this summer made an interesting group.

Some capital pen and ink sketches by Indianapolis students were a great addition to the exhibition. They also sent some very creditable charcoal and water color studies. The Fort Wayne students had many water color sketches, flowers, small marine scenes, and summer landscape were their favorite subjects.

Russian tea and wafers were served during the afternoon by Misses Beaber, Griffith, Dryer, Hamilton and Winch. Owing to the inclemency of the weather on Saturday, the studio will be open to visitors tomorrow and Saturday afternoons.

A RELIABLE PILE CURE.

The Pyramid Pile Cure is the safest and surest pile cure on the market, because it contains no mineral poisons nor opium nor cocaine, but can be used with absolute safety and certainty of cure.

Many physicians are now using the Pyramid Pile Cure in place of surgical operations, being painless convenient to use, and the patient can attend to his daily occupation while the cure is being made, as it is used at night and no additional treatment is necessary.

Dr. Wharton says the Pyramid Pile Cure will prove a blessing to mankind, when it is remembered that heretofore a surgical operation was considered the only cure with all its danger to life, intense pain and an expense of from ten to one hundred dollars, to say nothing of the possible return of the trouble. The Pyramid Pile Cure is sold by druggists at 50 Cents and $1.00 and does the work quickly and safely.

A book on cause and cure of piles will be mailed free by addressing Pyramid Co., Albion, Mich.

CHEMICAL ANALYSIS and a careful microscopical examination of the urine, is a valuable aid in determining the nature of many chronic diseases, particularly those of the nervous system, blood, liver, kidneys, and bladder. These aids make it possible to treat such diseases successfully at a distance, without personal examination of the patient. Thus Bright's Disease of the Kidneys, Inflammation of the Bladder, Gravel, and other Diseases of the Urinary Organs, "Liver Complaint," Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, Dropsy and many other maladies are successfully treated and cured without personal consultation with the physician.

Nervous Debility, whether resulting from over-study, worry, disappointment, or from exhausting drains upon the system caused by pernicious secret habits contracted in youth, through ignorance of their ruinous consequences, is successfully managed, through correspondence, the necessary medicines being sent by mail or express. Write for question blanks, or describe your case, send sample of urine for analysis and enclose 10 cents for postage on treatise, which contains reproduced photographs and full names and addresses of vast numbers of people who have been cured in this way. GOOD NEWS, IF TRUE.

The Keystone and Columbian Trains to be Restored,

And Known as Nos. 15 and 16—An Apparently Well Founded Rumor Comes From Pittsburg.

Considerable interest centers about a rumor which is being industriously circulated today to the effect that the coming time table of the Pennsylvania company will include two new through trains to be known as Nos. 15 and 16. As the story goes, these new trains will be exact reproductions of the famous Nos. 22 and 25, known as the "Keystone" and the "Columbian" express trains, which ran over the Pittsburg road during the world's fair year, and which are now running between New York and Chicago via the Panhandle route. The rumor originated in Pittsburg from a railroader who claimed to have received the news from two of the officials whom he heard talking about the matter. The Pennsylvania company usually announces its winter time card early in the season, but this fall it has not yet been announced and nobody at this point is able to say when it will be ready to be given to the public. This delay is taken as evidence that radical changes are to be made.

BIG SALE OF CAR AXLES.

Yesterday the Bass Foundry and Machine works booked an order from the Illinois Central Railway company for 1,000 car axles. This, with an order received a few days ago, makes 1,400 car axles now contracted for and means over-time in the blacksmith shops and possibly another gang of workmen. The machine and boiler departments of the great works are also filling up again with orders, the latest being from the Brown, Bonell Iron company, of Youngstown, Ohio, for a rolling mills engine of 300-horse power. The order was telegraphed in by Mr. J. E. Noble, last evening, and was accompanied by the statement that he was figuring upon the boiler plant also, with fair prospects of closing the contract soon.

THE NICKEL PLATE NIMRODS GO ON A HUNT.

Charles Vanderman, switchman in the Nickel Plate yards, went down to Knox last Friday night to hunt a couple of days, and he had more ill luck than is usually the lot of amateur huntsmen. Saturday it rained continuously and Charlie spent the day in a sheep pen, watching the clouds roll by and wondering if they never would cease weeping. Sunday dawned bright and clear and renting a $2-a-day dog, Charlie started for the hunting grounds, about four miles distant. Near the place of destination the hunter and his dog had to cross a railroad track and a passenger train which was passing at that moment struck the animal and crippled him so that he could not walk. Charlie carried the poor canine back to Knox and shortly after boarded a train and came home, thoroughly disgusted with everything in general and his hunting experience in particular. Altogether different was the experience of Engineer Wash Frase and Fireman John Sanburn, who were hunting in the vicinity of Hadley. They started a rabbit in a piece of woods pasture, and so excited were they that they forgot all about the guns which each carried, and dropping the pieces, started in pursuit of the frightened cotton tail, which was soon captured. Then they tied the poor thing to a bush and shot him to death. Early in the chase their intelligent hunting dog became disgusted and refused to take part in the sport.

Take All.

In all probability an action for the dissolution of the firm of Giesselheim & Schnitzwasser will soon be filed in the superior court.

For some time Mr. Schnitzwasser has not been satisfied with the profits of the business, and he was led to suspect that Mr. Giesselheim was knocking down and dragging out the contents of the till. He set to work to detect his partner, and, by stealthily counting the cash before and after taking, he soon verified his suspicions.

Yesterday morning Mr. Schnitzwasser counted the money in the till as soon as he opened the store, and found it contained about $40. A few minutes later Mr. Giesselheim entered, opened the drawer and took some coin, with the remark:

"I'm going out to get a shave."

Mr. Schnitzwasser dashed to the till, counted the money and found that his partner had taken about $25.

"Hey, Giesselheim!" he shouted. "You'd better come back and take the rest and get a hair cut."—San Francisco Post.

There are always two classes or community who are conservatives. They are dead set against change, especially against social and industrial reformatory movements. These are, first, the very poor and ignorant; second, the very rich and respectable. They clasp hands in opposing anything new. It is always the middle class—the people who both work and think—that carry the world onward in the path of progress.

THE PORTE

Furnishes Minister Terrell With Some Information

Regarding the Burning and Pillaging of American Missions—Anxiety Felt in Antonia.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 18, VIA SOFIA, BULGARIA, Nov. 19.—In response to the telegrams sent to Kharput by the United States minister, Mr. Alexander W. Terrell, inquiry into the burning and pillaging of the American missions there, (exclusively announced by the Associated Press on Saturday morning) the porte has furnished some information to Mr. Terrell and additional facts have been obtained from other sources by the United States minister. As Mr. Terrell will communicate direct with the state department at Washington on the subject, the facts in his possession cannot be given out here But enough is known of the disturbances at Kharput to enable the Associated Press to give the following general outline of the occurrences:

The trouble between the Kurds and Mussulmans at Kharput had been brewing for some time. On the other hand it was claimed that the Armenians incited by the agents of their revolutionary committee, had been arming themselves, holding secret meetings and preparing for revolt against the Turkish authorities The crisis was to be precipitated by an attack upon the Mussulman quarter. A second version of the affair is that the Turks, acting under instructions from the Yildiz Kiosk officials, if not from the sultan himself, deliberately planned to massacre the Armenians of Kharput.

The Kurds, who were not armed with rifles, were provided with weapons similar to those used by the Turkish soldiery and ammunition was plentifully distributed among them. At a signal agreed upon a quarrel was picked with some Armenians and the attack upon their quarters was commenced. The Armenians, however, had been anticipating an outbreak for some time past. They had armed themselves as well as possible and had barricaded their dwellings and made so determined a resistance that the first attack of the Kurds was repulsed.

As announced in these despatches exclusively at the time, when it first became apparent that a disturbance was imminent, the American missionaries at Kharput applied for protection to Mr. Terrell. The latter called personally at the porte and sent several notes on the subject to the minister of foreign affairs, insisting that the Turkish officials should protect the American missionaries, and notifying the sultan and his ministers they would be held responsible for the safety of the missionaries. In view of these representations, the Turkish officials promised to protect the lives of the missionaries and detailed gend'armes to guard their property, with the following result:

When the Armenians stopped the first attack of the Kurds the latter were so infuriated at the check they had received that they proceeded to the quarter of Kharput, where the American mission is located, and quickly overcoming any opposition of the gendarmes, if there were any presented (a point which has not been definitely ascertained) they ransacked the houses, including eight of the American mission buildings, and exploded a shell in the house of one of the missionaries. The American missionaries, however, escaped uninjured and placed themselves under the immediate protection of the Turkish governor, who still has them safe under his care. During the pillaging, it has been ascertained beyond doubt, the Kurds were supported by the Turkish troops in a number of instances and in other cases the soldiers remained passive spectators of the rioting. Later a strong and successful attack was made by the Kurds upon the Armenian quarter, and a terrible massacre followed. The number of victims has not yet been ascertained, but it is declared to be enormous. Conservative estimates say that from 800 to 1,000 persons were killed during the rioting.

The American missionaries have formally protested against the destruction of their property to the Turkish authorities and Mr. Terrell, who, when the facts in the case are thoroughly established, will most likely demand that the Americans be compensated for their losses. In fact, it is understood, Mr. Terrell has already been assured that the Turkish government is prepared to do what is right in the case when all sides have been heard and the blame is placed where it belongs.

A fresh fanatical outbreak has occurred at Moosch, but it was suppressed by the Turkish authorities after forty Armenians had been killed.

There is evidence from many directions that the porte has been frightened by the gathering of the foreign fleets in Salonica bay and by the advice, accompanied by a clear statement of the real situation, received from Germany and Austria, who seem to be acting in accord, into adopting really energetic repressive measures. This state of affairs is commended on all sides.

The situation in southwest Antonia, where the Christians are gathering in large numbers, is inspiring the most grave anxiety, not so much at the Yildiz Kiosk as among the representatives of the powers here, as this outbreak complicates matters in a manner well calculated to create alarm, for it is difficult to see how the Turk can be prevent, by force, which would mean more bloodshed.

A British warship has been ordered to Alexandretta, northern Syria, and the United States cruiser San Francisco, flagship of the European squadron, is expected there daily. In addition, a French warship has been despatched to Beyrout, Syria The sultan continues to exist in a state of greatest alarm, which is telling terribly on his already much weakened nerves

Rumors of the discovery of plots against Abdul Hamid's life are now so frequent that they no longer attract much attention, and some of his ministers, it is known, have to be kept constantly guarded by soldiers in order to give them courage enough to transact the business of their respective offices.

Throughout the night of Saturday last, November 16, which was a most critical day for the Turkish empire, the sultan was engaged, sitting close to the telegraph instrument in the Yildiz Kiosk, personally dictating instructions to the different provincial governors to do their utmost to restore order in their districts This indicates that the sultan has at last had his eyes opened to the character of his advisors and that he has finally determined to take the reins of government in his own hands. The lack of sufficient funds to equip the reserves called out and the scarcity of regular troops in the disturbed provinces is a matter of great concern to the sultan, who is said to be rapidly getting an idea of the extent to which misgovernment has spread, not that this has gone on without his knowledge.

DASTARDLY DEED!

Wreckers Throw a Train From the Track.

Killing the Engineer and Two Tramps—Drew the Spikes From the Rails.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 19.—A deliberate attempt was successfully made at a point one mile west of Rome, at 4 o'clock this morning, to wreck train No. 6, on the New York Central railway, the engine and all of the cars on the train being ditched and completely wrecked.

The engineer of the train, Nate Hager, of Albany, and two tramps were killed. The fireman, Chris Wagoner, of Albany, and Mail Clerks Porter and M. J. McCarthy were injured.

This is the second attempt within three weeks to wreck the same train near the same spot, which is an ideal one for the commission of such a crime.

The wreckers broke into the section tool house and stole some tools, with which they removed the fish plates which fasten the rails to the ties and pulled out the spikes. The train left this city at 3.30 o'clock. It consisted of four mail cars and three sleepers.

There were eleven postal clerks and fourteen passengers aboard, besides the members of the crew. When the crash came the engine was thrown from the track into the ditch and completely submerged in the mire, only the driving wheels on the left side being above the earth. Engineer Hager went down with his engine and must have been instantly killed. The fireman, Chris. Wagner, was badly injured about the head and it is feared that he is internally hurt.

The two tramps who were found dead are supposed to have been stealing a ride on the forward end of the first mail car, directly in the rear of the engine.

LATER.

ALBANY N Y., Nov. 19.—John Hildreth and Frederick Bristol, two boys, have been arrested by the Central Hudson detectives at Rome, charged with wrecking train No. 6 this morning. Young Hildreth broke down and confessed that he and Bristol, in company with two boys named Herbert Platto and Theodore Hibbard, committed the crime.

Hi Perrin, who is now located at Muncie, was in the city today, the guest of his brother, John Perrin.

A BLIZZARD

Strikes Chicago and is Headed This Way.

Trains Delayed—Telegraph Communication Interrupted—Zero Weather Within Twenty-Four Hours.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—Many people in this section and west of here have for many days been calling loudly for a change in the weather. They found it when they arose this morning. Snow began falling heavily in the far northwest yesterday, and chased along by a cold wave and high wind came to this section in a hurry. At 3 o'clock this morning a mild rain was falling. Soon after that hour, however, the cold wind changed the situation and snow and sleet has been coming down since. The streets are covered with over three inches of mixed mud and snow; street traffic in the city is hampered and pedestrians are having a terrible time

Telegraph and telephone wires are covered with a mass of slush and swollen to four times their usual size. As a result of this storm, telegraphic communication with the northwest and many points west is seriously interrupted, wires having been broken and, in places, poles pulled down by the strain.

Trains are delayed on several railroads west and north, the storm having been most unexpected and of such a nature as to render the pulling of heavy trains very difficult.

From the Manitoba line, zero weather is reported. It is rapidly moving south and east and at the present rate will extend over the entire upper lake region, the upper Mississippi and lower Ohio and Missouri valleys during the next twenty-four hours.

PURCELL BURNING.

Very Little of the Town Can be Saved.

Several Persons Perish—Fire in a New York Candle Factory—One Man Lost.

PERRY, O. T., Nov. 19.—Just after 3 o'clock this morning the north side of the city of Purcell, I. T., caught fire and the flames are still raging. Three-fourths of the town is in ashes and if the wind continues to blow as it is from the north, very little of the town can be saved.

Purcell is located on the bank of the South Canadian river on a high hill, and the wind has full sway. It is reported at this time that several persons perished in the flames

NEW YORK Nov. 19.—Fire in a six-story factory building at 98 Clinton street today caused a panic among the working people employed there, who numbered about 200 One person is known to have perished and there may have been others who met a similar fate. The basement, in which the flames started, was occupied as a candle factory and the tallow there caused the fire to spread rapidly, cutting off egress by way of the stairs

One of the most enjoyable events of the season in east end social circles was the celebration of the twenty sixth birthday of Frank M. Rhodes, at his pleasant home, 131 Hanna street. The affair was gotten up by Mrs. Rhodes and her sisters, the Misses Bates, and it was a complete surprise upon the host, who suspicioned nothing until the guests arrived in a body, about 8:30 o'clock. The guests left a substantial reminder of their visit in the shape of [illegible] set of chairs. Mr. Rhodes responded [illegible] ing as spokesman for them in the presentation. An orchestra was present and furnished music for dancing and the younger portion of the guests indulged in that past time, while the elder ones devoted a portion of the evening to pedro.

AGONY OF CHRIST

Must be Experienced by All Christians.

Theme of Dr. Chapman's Sermon Last Night—Prayer More Effective Than Preaching.

Dr. Chapman was greeted by another big crowd at the Princess rink last night. There were present between 2,500 and 2,800 people. The jam and crush that marked the Sunday night gathering was not repeated last night, better arrangements and facilities for entrance and exit being employed. Last night all the doors were used and the crowds came and departed easily and without the slightest trouble.

Before commencing his sermon Dr. Chapman made an important announcement regarding the opening of the doors hereafter. He said that when ever any considerable number of people gathered in front of the rink the doors would be thrown open and they could enter and take seats. But he wanted those early comers to understand and agree that if they should take a seat belonging to an usher they must move when requested to do so and he did not want them to feel offended if they should be requested to move He explained that everything possible would be done for the comfort of the audience at each meeting.

Mr. Chapman took his text from the forty-fourth verse of the twenty second chapter of Luke: "And being in an agony He prayed more earnestly and His sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground."

Unbelievers, said Dr Chapman, read the Bible and they frequently pause and put a question mark after certain verses. They find something they cannot understand and they mark it as one thing that causes them to disbelieve the Bible. They always mark the verse of the text because they say that it is a physical impossibility for a man to sweat blood. But Jesus Christ did sweat blood. I believe it because the Bible says so.

Mr. Chapman gave such a graphic and spirited description of the agony of Christ in the Garden of Olives that it almost seemed his words were inspired.

It was the central thought of Dr. Chapman's discourse that to receive fully the spirit of the word and truth of God we must experience the same agony that Christ did. Then we pray more earnestly, and it is such prayer that saves men's souls Oh, that I knew the meaning of such agony, said the speaker. If we preachers could only feel as Christ felt at that time we would need nothing else to bring men to God. The people would flock to the Father as doves to their window.

I do not believe that great preaching, even by the Apostle Paul himself, can ever start an awakening. But we must know how to pray as Christ prayed when in His agony. Did you ever pray thus? I believe that you hold the key to the situation, and that it is your praying and not my preaching that will start the awakening. I ask you to have such a spirit and I promise you, as the servant of God, that you will receive great blessing.

An old elder came to our meeting where I was once preaching. It was in the winter season. We had been together for two or three days. Near the close of one of our meetings the old man rose and said. "One thing I will do before we meet again." He seemed to be feeling very deeply. We learned at length what that one thing was. It was to visit a blacksmith who lived four miles away and ask him to come to Christ Next morning there was a snow storm, but the old man hitched up to the cutter and drove to the shop. The blacksmith went down to see what he wanted. He found him standing inside, pale and trembling, tears streaming down his face. He asked him what was the matter and he could only say: "I come to ask you to come to Christ, I promised your father when he was dying that I would try to bring you to the Savior," and here his voice was choked by his sobs and he could say no more. He drove home and sadly told his wife that he had made a failure of his mission. God did not regard it that way. That night the blacksmith was in church and rose when he had the opportunity and told of the visit he had had that day and gave his heart to Christ. God always honors such prayer, such agony as this.

I have no trouble in believing the Bible. I believe that Jesus Christ suffered the agony and that He did sweat great drops of blood. And if I could but say two words as He said His prayers I would ask no other means of winning men to God. If I could but speak the words "lost" and "eternity," in the same agony! The theme of the sermon will show you how God feels about lost souls.

I have very little confidence in the men and women who profess to believe the Bible but who do nothing to save men. You will never win men until you have the spirit of the text. I don't believe you can preach people into the church, if I thought I could I would preach here until I dropped. But we can pray them in. Some people will say. "How am I going to get this truth?" It is the natural result of being filled with the spirit of Christ.

It is strange that you can believe the Bible when your husband and your boy are lost and you are indifferent. If my little boy were in danger I would give my life to save him. Your boy is in danger of judgment. What are you doing to save him?

BIT BY A DOG.

A Suit in Justice France's Court for Damages.

A Jefferson Township Woman Fined—Many Marriage Licenses—News in the Courts.

The case of Rudolph Gunthers against Herman Rust for $100 damages was tried before Justice France this morning and a judgment rendered for $4. The dog of the defendant bit the little daughter of the plaintiff and she was confined to her home for two weeks. C. Holder represented the plaintiff and J. M. Robinson the defendant.

Justice Tancey fined Sarah Jackson $20 and costs for keeping a house of ill fame in Jefferson township. Her eleven-year-old daughter, Maude, was sent to the reform school by Judge O'Rourke. Affidavits may be filed against several men for visiting this place of Mrs. Jackson.

Justice France fined Andrew Schlenker $2 and costs for drunkenness.

In the circuit court this morning Judge O'Rourke sentenced Harry Stone to jail for ninety days for larceny, John Herring, larceny, sixty days, and set the trial of Albert Russell, charged with forgery, for November 26.

Negotiations are on foot by which the county commissioners will probably soon purchase the New Haven gravel road for $4,700, the appraised value.

County Clerk Metzgar has issued the following marriage licenses: Albert Randall and Edith Sheehan, Miles Hanchett and Katie E. Robinson, James Merkling and Mary E. Hess, William E Hatch and Ella Wolfe, Peter E. Schneider and Cora E. Holwarth, Alonzo L. Gregg and Minerva Zebeddner, Harvy Shirey and Anna Bahrdt.

It is said that Mrs. Ernest Sauerwein, the Bloomingdale woman who created a sensation some time ago by eloping with a man named Von, taking with her her two children and about $1,100 of her husband's money, has made another break. It will be remembered that the woman was found in Minneapolis with her children and that Sheriff Clausmeier brought them back and that the husband and wife made up again. This was several weeks ago. Now, the report says, Mrs. Sauerwein has left again and gone to Cincinnati. The object of her visit to that city was [illegible]

A WINCHESTER

Prevented a Jail Delivery Early This Morning.

Duffy and Sheridoo Were Sawing Out of Jail When the Officers Stopped Them.

If it had not been for the vigilance and watchfulness of Sheriff Clausmeier and Deputy Sheriff Harrod last night there would have been a wholesale jail delivery at the county jail. Two desperate prisoners had laid the plans well and were executing the work with great diligence and skill when they were caught at it They had progressed so far that they could almost smell the air of freedom but thanks to the watchfulness of the sheriff and deputy they are now further than ever from the goal.

Henry Duffy and Thomas Sheridoo were the men who were doing the work that was intended to be the means of liberating about eighteen criminals. Duffy is the man who is awaiting trial for being implicated in the shooting of Deputy Sheriff Harrod last summer, in which melee Walrath was killed, and for implication in which the man Stone has been sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary Stone is still in the Allen county jail, but is kept in another apartment and away from Duffy. Sheridoo is a man who is serving long time in the jail for shoving a revolver under the nose of a Pittsburg brakeman some time ago.

It was suspected yesterday by Sheriff Clausmeier and Deputy Harrod that these men were arranging to make an attempt to escape and it was decided to watch them and nip the plan. So Harrod stood watch last night and his vigilance was rewarded.

At about 2 15 o'clock this morning Harrod went to the door leading from the jail office to the corridor and peeped through the wicket. There, inside the corridor, he saw two men on their knees industriously sawing away at one of the iron bars that separate the inner from the outer corridors Duffy was operating the saw while Sheridoo was holding the bar and steadying it. While they were in that position and before they could rise to their feet, Harrod poked a Winchester repeating rifle through the door and ordered them to hold up their hands, which they did with great alacrity. They were ordered to throw the saw out through the bars and they did it. Then they were searched.

The saw with which they were doing the work was a small affair of the hacket street. They had made a handle out of some heavy wire which had been handed to them by some one outside or in the bum room. When the cells of the men were searched three more saws of the same kind were found in their bedticks. Only one had been used, but with it they had sawed off two steel bars each an inch thick.

It was the intention of the men to get into the outer corridor and then throw the lever that opens all the doors on the south row of cells, thus liberating all the eighteen prisoners in that department. When Duffy was questioned by the officers after the thing was over he said: "You can't blame me for trying to get out. I would like to get out of this place." That is no doubt true. Duffy also remarked that he was much obliged to Harrod for not pulling the trigger of the Winchester.

Duffy and Sheridoo have both been put back in their cells and will not be allowed out in the corridors any more. The officers will take no more chances with them.

This is the third time that attempts at jail delivery have been foiled by Sheriff Clausmeier and Deputy Harrod. None of the other attempts came so near being successful as did this one this morning If these men had had a few more minutes to work they would have succeeded in their design, but the vision of a Winchester containing sixteen large bullets was enough to stop them.

ANOTHER BIKE STOLEN.

This Time A. C. Kalt is the Loser of a Wheel.

A. C. Kalt, the bicycle dealer, would like for some fellow to bring back a wheel which he rented yesterday. The young fellow rented the wheel to go and find some relatives in South Wayne, but he seems to be having a great lot of difficulty in finding them, as he has not yet returned The wheel was a Century Niagara, No. 9,258, the number being marked on the under side of the crank. There seems to be no end to the stealing of bicycles in this city.

AFTER THE BOYS.

Police Will Stop the Practice of Jumping on Trains.

The police are after the boys who make a practice of jumping on trains. This practice among the boys has become so great that it is necessary for the officers to stop it. Hereafter a close watch will be kept and every boy caught climbing on trains will be arrested. If they cannot be arrested at the trains they will be taken from their homes with warrants. This determination on the part of the officers should serve as a warning to the boys and cause them to quit the risky business

A STOLEN WHEEL

Is Sold by William Moore at Huntington.

Moore Arrested and Brought to This City—Claims He Traded a Gold Watch for It.

The man who is supposed to have stolen William Yagey's bicycle from in front of Kane's store, on Calhoun street, last Saturday noon, was captured at Huntington last night and Superintendent Liggett went there this morning and brought him to this city. The man gives his name as William Moore, of Columbus, Ohio He claims he traded a gold watch to some man on the street here Saturday for the wheel. The bicycle was found at Huntington, where Moore had sold it for $15, and Superintendent Liggett brought it along with him. Yagey identified it as his wheel. Moore is in the police station awaiting trial.

CREMATORY TESTED.

A Sheep Carcass Consumed in a Short Time.

The Crematory in Lindenwood Cemetery Has Been Completed—Its Construction and How It Works.

The new crematory which has just been completed in Lindenwood cemetery, was given a test yesterday afternoon in the presence of a number of persons, including the builder, Dr. L. M. Davis, of Lancaster, Pa.; Architect Wing, members of the cemetery association, newspaper men and other visitors.

The crematory stands on the side of a small hill, about in the center of the cemetery, and the building that has been erected for it is a very handsome little structure of the Roman style of architecture, built entirely of stone.

The crematory is a success, according to the test made yesterday. The construction of the furnace and the retort are of much interest. The furnace is situated at the west end of the building, immediately at the rear of the retort in which the body to be cremated is placed. The fuel used is coke, which furnishes a white heat. The retort is built of fire clay and in shape is very similar to an ordinary bake oven in a bakery. The heat that is furnished by the coke fire is obliged to make three complete circuits around the retort before it reaches the chimney, and this insures that every particle of smoke will be consumed, as well as the gases that are distilled from the body. A strong draft is furnished by means of the large chimney and four one and one half inch pipes, which are in the furnace.

Yesterday the furnace was fired up at 10 o'clock in the morning and at 1 o'clock it was hot enough to make a test However, it was delayed until 4:30 in order that the interested parties might all be present.

A carcass of a large sheep was used in making the test. It was placed in a long tray together with a number of big, heavy beef bones. When Dr. Davis gave the word, the tray was shoved into the open door of the retort, where a heat of 2,500 degrees awaited it Even before the tray had fully entered the retort the body was on fire and was being consumed. The carcass was wrapped in a cloth that had been saturated with alum water. This alum water holds the fibres of the cloth intact in spite of the fact that the cloth is instantly consumed by the intense heat, and when the incineration has been completed the remaining particles of the cloth can be removed and the ashes of the body taken out.

The cremation of the sheep was completed before 8 o'clock last night and the heavy beef bones were reduced to ashes in a short time afterward.

Dr. Davis said to THE SENTINEL reporter that the time required for the incineration of a human body varies. If the bones in the body are hard and full of earthy matter it takes longer than when they contain a large amount of animal matter. The usual time, he says, is from one and a half to two hours.

The cost of this crematory is about $5,600, of which $1,800 was paid for the furnace and retort. It is the first crematory ever built in the state of Indiana.

It might be of interest to state here that there is in this city a compact of some of the most prominent citizens who have agreed that when their bodies are to be disposed of it shall be by the process of incineration. This compact was formed several years ago and since that time one of the members has died. His body was taken to a crematory in another city and cremated. It was largely due to the influence of these gentlemen that the new crematory was erected in Lindenwood cemetery.

THE national hymn, "America," has been officially adopted as a part of the hymnal of the Protestant Episcopal church, and will hereafter be sung by every choir of that denomination in the United States.

FORT WAYNE during the last several days has witnessed a spirit of church unity that has never before been witnessed in this city The members of the different churches are working, shoulder to shoulder, in the Chapman meetings now in progress, for the salvation of sinners. Such united action and such earnest and consecrated efforts as they are putting forth cannot but result otherwise than in doing great good.

WE wish that every one of the readers of THE SENTINEL could find it convenient to attend the evangelistic meetings now in progress at the Princess rink under the leadership of Dr Chapman We know they would prove profitable

SENATOR WILLIAM V. ALLEN says the populist party will be in the field next year with a presidential candidate, and that the populist party will "be the only one of the old parties that will be outspoken for the free comage of silver at 16 to 1."

NOBODY speaks of Governor elect Bushnell in connection with the presidency or the senatorial succession, or anything else. In fact a good many people have to tax their memories somewhat to remember that he has been elected governor of Ohio.

MEN who give up their seats in the street car to women often complain that they are accepted without the courtesy of a "thank you" While this is doubtless true, it is also true that a man sometimes forgets to give a woman a chance to thank him He sees her enter the car, and, instead of offering his seat politely and raising his hat turns his back and walks to the other end as though he gave it up through simple compulsion of custom. This robs the act of its graciousness, and gives the woman who takes the seat an uncomfortable feeling of having forced its former occupant out merely by her presence.

IT IS a fact worthy of attention that the figures show that in the states of the union where popular education is most sedulously cultivated, where the public schools are the strongest in their endowment and support, the percentage of women teachers is the largest, as the percentage of illiteracy is the lowest. The schoolmaster is still "abroad," but it is the schoolma'am who is attaining the wider circulation. Men abandon the profession of teaching, refuse, in fact, to consider it a profession at all. It is woman as a teacher who has "come to stay." That women shall teach children seems to be a suggestion of nature. The child learns his letters naturally from her who teaches him first to talk. He most readily learns the printed page from that teacher who may be said to introduce him first to knowledge of any sort The first knowledge is acquired from the nearest teachers, and what is so near to childhood as womanhood?

It is of interest in connection with the agitation for temperance reform to note that Howard Crosby, president of the New York Social Reform club, declares he has lost all faith in laws as instruments of temperance reform. He believes that moral suasion and the influence of public opinion are the true weapons with which to fight drunkenness Mr. Crosby is very nearly right No matter how stiff a law may be enacted there are always ways of getting under, over or around it If those who direct all their efforts toward having stiff prohibition laws passed would also labor to give workingmen cleaner, more inviting homes, better food and good cooking, if they would establish temperance clubrooms, where men might enjoy a pleasant social hour of evenings, they could accomplish much more in the cause of temperance than is now done In addition, the children of the poor must be made happy and comfortable, they must have clean, pleasant, harmonious homes Here is a great field of work—to make our working people so happy and comfortable that they will not care to enter saloons

Westinghouse, the electrician, is credited with saying that electrical power can be produced at one sixth its present cost He expects to show in a few months that this is entirely practicable If so, then steam is doomed to go sooner than was looked for Electricity can be distributed everywhere from the largest factory to the plain farmhouse, to become man's servant and do his work It is now almost certain that the electrical current can be successfully conveyed to the motor of a street car without the interven'on of either a trolley wire or underground conduit The street car of the future is to be propelled thus

Arizona has 77 000 white people and 37,000 red people among her population She seems to have almost as much trouble in deciding what to do with her red men as South Carolina has with her black men In his last message Governor Hughes recommended that the Indians be encouraged to take up farming, but they could not do this unless the land should be irrigated Arizona's best outlook for the future seems to be in her gold mines which yielded twice as much in 1894 as they did in 1893

Hinshaw Murder.

The anonymous letter from Fort Wayne written in the interest of W. E Hinshaw, and asserting his innocence, has been placed in my hands to be used in his behalf. Before the same can be made available, it will be necessary for me to have some further information touching some of the details of the crime If the writer will, therefore, give me the name of a paper in which I can publish the questions I want answered and one where he will be sure to see them, he will be doing an innocent man great service and lightening the load on his own conscience. Address, James O Parker, Danville, Indiana 213

"I FEEL IT IN MY BONES."

Rheumatic Persons Perfect Barometers.

Not a Foolish Notion but Explainable on Scientific Principles.

Some Account of a Painful and Deforming Disease.

Many persons claim that they can foretell changes in the weather, the only explanation for their knowledge being that "they feel it in their bones." This is not a foolish notion. The nerves of persons suffering from rheumatism are more highly sensative than those of other people, and for that reason they are more easily affected by any change in the atmosphere. How few of us are exempt from this common disease. After some exposure to wet or cold, there are slight chills lassitude, no appetite, bitter taste in the mouth, coated tongue, and excessive soreness, lameness and swelling in some joint, muscle or portion of the body. The pains shift from one place to another sometimes the disease may settle in the back, or chest, and one can scarcely breathe without a sharp pain, the shoulder or arm may be affected, or the rheumatism may settle in the feet and legs At any time there is danger that the rheumatism may attack some vital organ like the heart and carry off its victim.

The seat of the disease is in the blood and nerves. Get the blood and nerves right and you remove the cause of the trouble. Mr. Daniel A. Foster, of Wentworth, N. H., who had been suffering for years, at last found prompt relief from pain and describes it in the following letter

"I have been in an extremely nervous condition," says Mr Foster "I had the grip so that I was unconscious for several days for most of the time. I have had the rheumatism for seven years, enough to kill a man. When I had the grip everybody thought I would die, but I pulled through. I have used medicine, every kind that we could hear of but, that did not do me any good. I have had many doctors prescribe for me, but they didn't hit my case.

"I saw Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy advertised and watched the papers to see how people talked in the papers, and saw it so well recommended that I went down and got a bottle. That did me so much good that I went down and got another bottle, and that helped me still more. I have now used five bottles and can truly say that it has helped me more than all the other medicines and doctors put together that I ever used. I had the rheumatism so badly that I could not sit up, nor dress myself, and I thought I knew what pain was, but not before. But now that is all gone I do not have an ache or a pain and I work every day and do as much work as any man in town.

"Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy was what cured me, and I cheerfully recommend it to others as the best medicine I ever used."

Mr John A Davis, postmaster of the town of Wentworth, says.

"I am personally acquainted with Mr Daniel A. Foster, and have known him for forty years and can vouch for the truth of his story, for I have long known of his case"

Mrs. Daniel Foster also used the Nervura and adds her recommendation

"I never take medicine if I can possibly help it, but sometimes I can't. My food distressed me and soured in my stomach, causing considerable gas This gave me great pain. I was also very sleepless, and at times could not get the refreshing sleep so much needed. When these spells came on I used Dr Greene's Nervura, and the result was that I slept soundly and was refreshed It also relieved me of the distress of dyspepsia I cordially recommend it to all as the best medicine I ever used."

The immense benefit which Mr. Foster derived from the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura, the great blood and nerve remedy, is shown by the quickness with which the pain disappeared The entire system is nourished by the nutritive and strengthening properties of this sure, safe and valuable cure. Why not try it today? Do not wait for the pain to pursue you into every part of your body, leaving you with terrible deformities. Remember that this wonderful remedy is the discovery of the great specialist Dr Greene, of 35 West 14th St., New York City, who can always be consulted personally or by letter, free of charge

BECAUSE OF REVENGE

Alvin Thompson Shoots His Brother and Then Himself.

Murder and Suicide at English, Ind., by a Schoolboy Who Was Punished by His Father.

ENGLISH, Ind, Nov. 21 —Alvin Thompson, aged thirteen years, shot and instantly killed his brother, Willis, yesterday, and then killed himself.

Alvin Thompson, the murderer, was expelled from school on account of quarrelsomeness several weeks ago, but instead of reporting his case to his parents played truant till two days ago, when his eleven year old brother told upon him Alvin was severely punished by his father and swore to even up by killing his father, brother and self.

The threat was looked upon as a child's idle words, but it is now supposed that the fact that but two cartridges were in the revolver which he procured is the only cause of him failing to carry out his threat. The boy must have been cool and deliberate in his crime, for each ball did its duty with fatal precision.

Alvin is reported to have been a veritable terror to the neighborhood and is supposed to have been the author of numerous incendiary fires, among which was the destruction of his father's barn in which two horses and all the farm machinery were destroyed That his present crime and all his previous ones were the result of revenge there is no doubt among those who know the boy. With the exception of Alvin, the Thompson family stands high in the community where they live.

GALLAGHER AGAIN BEATS IVES.

The Veteran "Gray Tom" Gives "Napoleon" a Hard Game.

NEW YORK, Nov 21 - In last night's play at Daly's academy Frank Ives averaged fifty, as he offered to bet he would, but even then he failed to keep up with his handicap against Gallagher The veteran played steadily, and, with 58 his highest run, averaged 24 making his 240 while the "Young Napoleon" was accumulating 467. In his fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth innings Ives played beautiful billiards for 179, 92 31 and 97, a total of 399 from four opportunities The 179 run was made at the foot of the table and was largely the result of line nursing. He is now 52, behind his handicap, and in order to finish in the lead tomorrow night, will have to make 1,123 before his opponent scores 240.

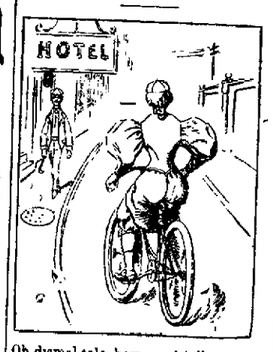
THE BLOOMER GIRL AND THE HOT AIR.



Oh dismal tale, how can I tell
The accident which late befell
Miss Minnie Moad in bloomers clad,
Who made her wheel and togs a fad.

He who last saw her on this earth
And chatted there in heartless mirth
Was Foote Ball Hair who took her hand
Not seeing where she took her stand

Alas, where she had placed her feet,
Was o're a heater in the street.
Not thinking that hot air would soon
Inflate those togs like a baloon.

But soon she rose and soared away
To Foote Ball Hair's intense dismay—
She floated o're the city high
And now she's "Staring" in the sky.

The Electric Works to Get New Machinery.

The Price of Steel Rails Goes Up—Rochester Threatens to Boycott a Railroad—Local Gossip.

Orders have been placed with Beaman & Smith and Brown & Sharpe, of Providence, R. I., for large boring mills and two large spur gear cutters, the same to be erected in the electric works in this city at the earliest possible moment. These machines are of the latest pattern and will greatly facilitate the work of making electrical machinery.

THREATENED BOYCOTT.

At Rochester, Ind., the merchants have become greatly incensed over the distribution of advertisements of a "bargain day" excursion to Chicago over the Chicago and Erie road December 2, as it will take away many of their most valued customers for the holiday trade. The merchants notified the railroad through its agent that they would discontinue their patronage if the excursion is carried out as announced.

STEEL RAILS VERY HIGH.

The high figures for steel rails recently quoted are said to be due to an actual scarcity, says the General Manager. The eastern mills have become choked with work, and eastern purchasers have gone as far west as Cleveland to place orders, and then were able to get only a part of what they wanted This is the more remarkable as the capacity of the rolling mills of Cleveland and Lorraine is said to exceed that of the eastern mills. Every time several large buyers come into the market for the purchase of rails the secret leaks out in spite of the utmost care in guarding it, and prices at once rise. It is said that a portion of the 70,000 tons of rails for the new Staten Island railway are to be furnished by the Cleveland mills.

TONY'S LETTER OF EXCUSE.

Some one is responsible for the story that when a short time ago an order was issued on the Wabash for all section men to come to the office and have their eyes examined, one of the men failed to appear, but sent a small package neatly tied up, and addressed to the eye inspector. The inspector opened it and found a glass eye wrapped up in tissue paper, and also an old-fashioned silver watch A hastily scribbled note enclosed was found to read as follows: "Oye Inspector: Dear Sir—The day before yesterday at nune I got word to cum down and have me ise looked after for culur blindness as ye call it. I had forty-five ties and ten rales to put down beyond the sand cut, and, as jerry Sullivan and Dominick Cooly were laid up since the wake that wuz holded over the ded corpus of Danny Doherty, my hands war too short to spare me. 'Twas lucky that the right oye that was first in my head was put out with the blow of a pik and me glass oye is a perfect figger of the oye that was not put out is sent to you together with my watch for the hexamination. I culd spare the glass oye better than the one in the head, and if she is culur blind I'l get one that aint. Yures Truely, ANTHONY DRISCOLL."

THE PORTE

Furnishes Minister Terrell With Some Information

Regarding the Burning and Pillaging of American Missions—Anxiety Felt in Antonia.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 18, via Sofia, BULGARIA, Nov. 19.—In response to the telegrams sent to Kharput by the United States minister, Mr. Alexander W. Terrell, inquiry into the burning and pillaging of the American missions there, (exclusively announced by the Associated Press on Saturday morning) the porte has furnished some information to Mr. Terrell and additional facts have been obtained from other sources by the United States minister. As Mr. Terrell will communicate direct with the state department at Washington on the subject, the facts in his possession cannot be given out here. Sufficient to know of the disturbances at Kharput to enable the Associated Press to give the following general outline of the occurrences:

The trouble between the Kurds and Mussulmans at Kharput had been brewing for some time. On the other hand it was claimed that the Armenians, incited by the agents of the revolutionary committee, had been arming themselves, holding secret meetings and preparing for revolt against the Turkish authorities. The crisis was to be precipitated by an attack upon the Mussulman quarter. A second version of the affair is that the Turks, acting under instructions from the Yildiz Kiosk officials, if not from the sultan himself, deliberately planned to massacre the Armenians of Kharput.

The Kurds, who were not armed with rifles, were provided with weapons similar to those used by the Turkish soldiery and ammunition was plentifully distributed among them. At a signal agreed upon a quarrel was picked with some Armenians and the attack upon their quarters was commenced. The Armenians, however, had been anticipating an outbreak for some time past. They had armed themselves as well as possible and had barricaded their dwellings and made so determined a resistance that the first attack of the Kurds was repulsed.

In announcing in three despatches exclusively at the time, when it first became apparent that a disturbance was imminent, the American missionaries at Kharput applied for protection to Mr. Terrell. The latter called personally at the porte and sent several notes on the subject to the minister of foreign affairs, insisting that the Turkish officials should protect the American missionaries, and notifying the sultan and his ministers they would be held responsible for the safety of the missionaries. In view of these representations, the Turkish officials promised to protect the lives of the missionaries and detailed gendarmes to guard their property, with the following result:

When the Armenians stopped the first attack of the Kurds the latter were so infuriated at the check they had received that they proceeded to the quarter of Kharput, where the American mission is located, and quickly overcoming any opposition of the gendarmes, if there were any present (a point which has not been definitely ascertained) they massacred the houses, including eight of the American mission buildings, and exploded a shell in the house of one of the missionaries. The American missionaries, however, escaped uninjured and placed themselves under the immediate protection of the Turkish governor. He still has them safe under his care. During the pillaging, it has been ascertained beyond doubt, the Kurds were supported by the Turkish troops in a number of instances and in other cases the soldiers remained passive spectators of the rioting. Later a strong and successful attack was made by the Kurds upon the Armenian quarter, and indiscriminate massacre followed. The number of victims has not yet been ascertained, but it is declared to be enormous. Conservative estimates say that from 800 to 1,000 persons were killed during the rioting.

The Armenian missionaries have formally protested against the destruction of their property by the Turkish authorities and Mr. Terrell, who, when the facts in the case are thoroughly established, will most likely demand that the Americans be compensated for their losses. In fact, it is understood, Mr. Terrell has already been assured that the Turkish government is prepared to do what is right in the case when all sides have been heard and the blame is placed where it belongs.

A fresh fanatical outbreak has occurred at Mocosh, but it was suppressed by the Turkish authorities after forty Armenians had been killed.

There is evidence from many directions that the porte has been frightened by the gathering of the foreign fleets in Salonica bay and by the advice, accompanied by a clear statement of the real situation, received from Germany and Austria, who seem to be acting in accord, into adopting really energetic repressive measures. This state of affairs is commenced on all sides.

The situation in southwest Anatolia, where the Christians are gathering in large numbers, is inspiring the most grave anxiety, not so much at the Yildiz Kiosk as among the representatives of the powers here, as this outbreak complicates matters in a manner well calculated to create alarm, for it is difficult to see how the Turk can be prevented from crushing every thing by force, which would mean more bloodshed.

A British warship has been ordered to Alexandretta, northern Syria, and the United States cruiser San Francisco, flagship of the European squadron, is expected there daily. In addition, a French warship has been despatched to Beyrout, Syria. The sultan continues to exist in a state of greatest alarm, which is telling terribly on his already much weakened nerves.

Rumors of the discovery of plots against Abdul Hamid's life are now so frequent that they no longer attract much attention, and some of his ministers, it is known, have to be kept constantly guarded by soldiers in order to give them courage enough to transact the business of their respective offices.

Throughout the night of Saturday last, November 16, there was a most critical day for the Turkish empire, the sultan was engaged, sitting close to the telegraph instrument in the Yildiz Kiosk, personally dictating instructions to the different provincial governors to do their utmost to restore order in their districts. This indicates that the sultan has at last had his eyes opened to the character of his advisers and that he has finally determined to take the reins of government in his own hands. The lack of sufficient funds to equip the reserves called out and the scarcity of regular troops in the disturbed provinces is a matter of great concern to the sultan, who is said to be rapidly getting an idea of the extent to which misgovernment has spread, and that this has gone on without his knowledge.

DASTARDLY DEED!

Wreckers Throw a Train From the Track.

Killing the Engineer and Two Tramps —Drew the Spikes From the Rails.

STRAUSS, N. Y., Nov. 19.—A deliberate attempt was successfully made at a point one mile west of Rome, at 4 o'clock this morning, to wreck train No. 6, on the New York Central railway, the engine and all of the cars on which train being ditched and completely wrecked.

The engineer of the train, Nate Hager, of Albany, and two tramps were killed. The fireman, Chris Wagoner, of Albany, and Mail Clerks Porter and M. J. McCarthy were injured.

This is the second attempt within three weeks to wreck the same train near the same spot, which is an ideal one for the commission of such a crime.

The wreckers broke into the section tool house and stole some tools, with which they removed the fish plates which fasten the rails to the ties and pulled out the spikes. The train left this city at 3:30 o'clock. It consisted of four mail cars and three sleepers.

There were eleven postal clerks and fourteen passengers aboard, besides the members of the crew. When the crash came the engine was thrown from the track into the ditch and completely submerged in the mire, only the driving wheels on the left side being above the earth. Engineer Hager went down with the engine and must have been instantly killed. The fireman, Chris. Wagner, was badly injured about the head and it is feared that he is internally hurt.

The two tramps who were found dead are supposed to have been stealing a ride on the forward end of the first mail car, directly in the rear of the engine.

LATER.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 19.—John Hildreth and Frederick Bristol, two boys, have been arrested by the Central Hudson detectives at Rome, charged with wrecking train No. 6 this morning. Young Hildreth broke down and confessed that he and Bristol, in company with two boys named Herbert Platto and Theodore Hibbard, committed the crime.

Hi Perrin, who is now located at Muncie, was in the city today, the guest of his brother, John Perrin.

A BLIZZARD

Strikes Chicago and is Headed This Way.

Trains Delayed—Telegraph Communication Interrupted—Zero Weather 31 Within Twenty-Four Hours.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—Many people in this section and west of here have for many days been calling loudly for a change in the weather. They found it when they arose this morning. Snow began falling heavily in the far northwest yesterday, and chased along by a cold wave and high wind came to this section in a hurry. At 3 o'clock this morning a mild rain was falling. Soon after that hour, however, the cold wind changed the situation and snow and sleet has been coming down since. The streets are covered with over three inches of mixed mud and snow; street traffic in the city is hampered and pedestrians are having a terrible time.

Telegraph and telephone wires are covered with a mass of slush and swollen to four times their usual size. As a result of this storm, telegraphic communication with the northwest and many points west is seriously interrupted, wires having been broken and, in places, poles pulled down by the strain.

Trains are delayed on several railroads, west and north, the storm having been most unexpected and of such a nature as to render the pulling of heavy trains very difficult.

From the Manitoba line, zero weather is reported. It is rapidly moving south and east and at the present rate will strike the entire upper lake region, the upper Mississippi and lower Ohio and Missouri valleys during the next twenty-four hours.

PURCELL BURNING.

Very Little of the Town Can be Saved.

Several Persons Perish—Fire in a New York Candle Factory—One Man Lost.

PERRY, O. T., Nov. 19—Just after 3 o'clock this morning the north side of the city of Purcell, I. T., caught fire and the flames are still raging. Three-fourths of the town is in ashes and if the wind continues to blow as it is from the north, very little of the town can be saved.

Purcell is located on the bank of the South Canadian river on a high hill, and the wind has full sway. It is reported at this time that several persons perished in the flames.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Fire in a six-story factory building at 98 Clinton street today caused a panic among the working people employed there, who numbered about 200. One person is known to have perished and there may have been others who met a similar fate. The basement, in which the flames started, was occupied as a candle factory and the tallow there caused the fire to spread rapidly, cutting off egress by way of the stairs.

Adjournment.

One of the most enjoyable events of the season in east end social circles was the celebration of the twenty sixth birthday of Frank M. Rhodes, at his pleasant home, 131 Hanna street. The affair was gotten up by Mrs. Rhodes and her sisters, the Misses Bates, and it was a complete surprise upon the host, who manifested nothing until the guests arrived in a body, about 8:30 o'clock. The guests left a substantial reminder of their visit in the shape of a handsome oak chair, N. Cowan acting as spokesman for them in the presentation. An orchestra was present and furnished music for dancing and the younger portion of the guests indulged in that past time, while the older ones devoted a portion of the evening to pedro.

EVIL ASSOCIATIONS

Cost Two Mexicans Their Lives at Santa Fe.

Committed Murder and Died Alone to the Offended Law—Hung at Sunrise.

SANTA FE, N. M., Nov. 19.—Jesus Valverdo and Felisiano Chaves, convicted of murdering Thomas Martinez, a ranchman, January 20, 1895, were executed here this morning, in the presence of 1,000 people. The scaffold was erected in a valley, three blocks north of the Palace hotel, and at dawn the crowd began to assemble. Valverdo was taken from jail to the gallows at sunrise. He was very much agitated and prayed continuously. His neck was broken by the fall when the trap was sprung.

Chaves addressed the crowd twenty minutes, saying evil associations has cost him his life and that he stepped briskly to the trap and died almost without a tremor, his neck also being broken by the fall. Visitpondo and Chaves killed Martinez because he detected them stealing his cattle.

AGONY OF CHRIST

Must be Experienced by All Christians.

Theme of Dr. Chapman's Sermon Last Night—Prayer More Effective Than Preaching.

Dr. Chapman was greeted by another big crowd at the Princess rink last night. There were present between 2,500 and 3,000 people. The jam and crush that marked the Sunday night gathering was not repeated last night, better arrangements and facilities for entrance and exit being employed. Last night all the doors were used and the crowds came and departed easily and without the slightest trouble.

Before commencing his sermon Dr. Chapman made an important announcement regarding the opening of the doors hereafter. He said that whenever any considerable number of people gathered in front of the rink the doors would be thrown open and they could enter and take seats. But he wanted those early comers to understand and agree that if they should take a seat belonging to an usher they must move when requested to do so and he did not want them to feel offended if they should be requested to move. He explained that everything possible would be done for the comfort of the audience at each meeting.

Mr. Chapman took his text from the forty-fourth verse of the twenty-second chapter of Luke: "And being in an agony He prayed more earnestly and His sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground."

Unbelievers, said Dr. Chapman, read the Bible and they frequently pause and put a question mark after certain verses. They find something they cannot understand and they mark it as one thing that causes them to disbelieve the Bible. They always mark the verse of the text because they say that it is a physical impossibility for a man to sweat blood. But Jesus Christ did sweat blood. I believe it because the Bible says so.

Dr. Chapman gave such a graphic and spiritual description of the agony of Christ in the Garden of Olives that it almost seemed his words were inspired.

It was the central thought of Dr. Chapman's discourse that to receive fully the spirit of the word and truth of God we must experience the same agony that Christ did. Then we pray more earnestly, and it is such prayer that saves men's souls. Oh, that I knew the meaning of such agony, said the speaker. If we preachers could only feel as Christ felt at that time we would need nothing else to bring men to God. The people would flock to the Father as doves to their windows.

I do not believe that great preaching, even by the Apostle Paul himself, can ever start an awakening. But we must know how to pray as Christ prayed when in His agony. Did you ever pray thus? I believe that you hold the key to the situation, and that it is your praying and not my preaching that will start the awakening. I ask you to have such a spirit and I promise you, as the servant of God, that you will receive great blessing.

An old elder came to our meeting where I was once preaching. It was in the winter season. We had been together for two or three days. Near the close of one of our meetings the old man rose and said: "Now, boys, I will not be with you next again." He seemed to be feeling very deeply. We learned at length what that one thing was. It was to visit a blacksmith who lived four miles away and ask him to come to Christ. Next morning there was a snow storm, but the old man hitched up to the cutter and drove to the shop. The blacksmith went there to see what he wanted. He found him standing inside, pale and trembling, tears streaming down his face. He asked him what was the matter and he could only say: "I came to ask you to come to Christ, I promised your father when he was dying that I would try to bring you to the Savior," and here his voice was choked by his sobs and he could say no more. He drove home and sadly told his wife that he had made a failure of his mission. God did not regard it that way. That night the blacksmith was in church and rose when he had the opportunity and told of the visit he had had that day and gave his heart to Christ. God always honors such prayer, such agony as this.

I have no trouble in believing the Bible. I believe that Jesus Christ suffered the agony and that He did sweat great drops of blood. And if I could but say two words as He said His prayers I would ask no other means of winning men to God. If I could but speak the words "God" and "eternity," in the same agony! The theme of the sermon will show you how God feels about lost souls.

I have very little confidence in the men and women who profess to believe the Bible but who do nothing to save men. Your will never win men until you have the spirit of Christ. I don't believe you ever preach people into the church; if I thought I could I would preach here until I dropped. But we can pray them in. Some people will say: "How am I going to get this truth?" It is the natural result of being filled with the spirit of Christ.

It is strange that you can believe the Bible when your husband and your boy are lost and you are indifferent. If my little boy were in danger I would give my life to save him. Your boy is in danger of judgment. What are you doing to save him?

There will be another meeting at the rink tonight, and every night except Saturday night.

BIT BY A DOG.

A Suit in Justice France's Court for Damages.

A Jefferson Township Woman Fined —Many Marriage Licenses— News in the Courts.

The case of Rudolph Gunthers against Herman Rust for $100 damages was tried before Justice France this morning and a judgment rendered for $1. The dog of the defendant bit the little daughter of the plaintiff and she was confined to her home for two weeks. C. Holder represented the plaintiff and J. M. Robinson the defendant.

Justice Tancey fined Sarah Jackson $20 and costs for keeping a house of ill fame in Jefferson township. Her eleven-year-old daughter, Maude, was sent to the Reform school by Judge O'Rourke. Affidavits may be filed against several men for visiting this place of Mrs. Jackson.

Justice France fined Andrew Schleneker $2 and costs for drunkenness.

In the circuit court this morning Judge O'Rourke sentenced Harry Soots to jail for ninety days for larceny, John Herring, larceny, sixty days, and set the trial of Albert Russell, charged with forgery, for November 26.

Negotiations are on foot by which the county commissioners will probably soon purchase the New Haven gravel road for $4,700, the appraised value.

County Clerk Metzger has issued the following marriage licenses: Albert Randall and Edith Sheehan, Miles Hanchett and Katie B. Robinson, James Merkling and Mary E. Hess, William E. Hatch and Ella Wolfe, Peter E. Schneider and Cora E. Holtzhauer, Harry Shirey and Anna Behrdt.

It is said that Mrs. Ernest Sauerwein, the Bloomingdale woman who created a sensation some time ago by eloping with a man named Von, taking with her her two children and about $1,100 of her husband's money, has made another break. It will be remembered that the woman was found in Minneapolis with her children and that Sheriff Clausmeier brought them back and that the husband and wife made up again. This was several weeks ago. Now, the report says, Mrs. Sauerwein has left again and gone to Cincinnati. The object of her visit is that city was not learned.

A WINCHESTER

Prevented a Jail Delivery Early This Morning.

Duffy and Sheridan Were Sawing Out of Jail When the Officers Stopped Them.

If it had not been for the vigilance and watchfulness of Sheriff Clausmeier and Deputy Sheriff Harrod last night there would have been a wholesale jail delivery at the county jail. Two desperate prisoners had laid the plans well and were executing the work with great diligence and skill when they were caught at it. They had progressed so far that they could almost smell the air of freedom, but thanks to the watchfulness of the sheriff and deputy they are now further than ever from the goal.

Henry Duffy and Thomas Sheridan were the men who were doing the work that was intended to be the means of liberating about eighteen criminals. Duffy is the man who is awaiting trial for being implicated in the shooting of Deputy Sheriff Harrod last summer, in which melee Walrath was killed, and for implication in which the man Stone has been sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary. Stone is still in the Allen county jail, but is kept in another apartment and away from Duffy. Sheridan is a man who is serving long time in the jail for shooting a revolver under the nose of a Pittsburg brakeman some time ago.

It was suspected yesterday by Sheriff Clausmeier and Deputy Harrod that these men were arranging to make an attempt to escape and it was decided to watch them and nip the plan. So Harrod stood watch last night and his vigilance was rewarded.

At about 2:15 o'clock this morning Harrod went to the door leading from the jail office to the corridor and peeped through the wicket. There, inside the corridor, he saw two men on their knees industriously sawing away at one of the iron bars that separate the inner from the outer corridors. Duffy was operating the saw while Sheridan was holding the bar and steadying it. While they were in that position and before they could rise to their feet, Harrod poked a Winchester repeating rifle through the door and ordered them to hold up their hands, which they did with great alacrity. They were ordered to throw the saw out through the bars and they did it. Then they were searched.

The saw with which they were doing the work was a small plate of the hardest steel. They had made a handle out of some heavy wire which had been bended to them by some one outside or in the barn room. When the cells of the men were searched three more saws of the same kind were found in their bedticks. Only one had been used with which to file, but all were cut two steel bars each an inch thick.

It was the intention of the men to get into the outer corridor and then throw the lever that opens all the doors on the south row of cells, thus liberating all the eighteen prisoners in that department. When Duffy was questioned by the officers after the thing was over he said: "You can't blame me for trying to get out. I would like to get out of this place." That is no doubt true. Duffy also remarked that he was much obliged to Harrod for not pulling the trigger of the Winchester.

Duffy and Sheridan have both been put in double-ironed cells and will not be allowed out in the corridors any more. The officers will take no more chances with them.

This is the third time that attempts at jail delivery have been foiled by Sheriff Clausmeier and Deputy Harrod. None of the other attempts came so near being successful as did this one this morning. If those men had had a few more minutes to work they would have succeeded in their design, but the vision of a Winchester containing sixteen large bullets was enough to stop them.

ANOTHER BIKE STOLEN.

This Time A. C. Hall is the Loser of a Wheel.

A. C. Hall, the bicycle dealer, would like for some fellow to bring back a wheel which he rented yesterday. The young fellow rented the wheel to go and find some relatives in South Wayne, but he seems to be having a great lot of difficulty in finding them, as he has not yet returned. The wheel was a Century Niagara, No. 9288, the number being marked on the under side of the crank. There seems to be no end to the stealing of bicycles in this city.

County Clerk Metzger has issued the following marriage licenses: Albert Randall and Edith Sheehan, Miles Hanchett and Katie B. Robinson, James Merkling and Mary E. Hess, William E. Hatch and Ella Wolfe, Peter E. Schneider and Cora E. Holtzhauer, Harry Shirey and Anna Behrdt.

A STOLEN WHEEL

Is Sold by William Moore at Huntington.

Moore Arrested and Brought to This City—Claims He Traded a Gold Watch for It.

The man who is supposed to have stolen William Yagey's bicycle from in front of Kaus's store, on Calhoun street, last Saturday noon, was captured at Huntington last night and Superintendent Liggett went there this morning and brought him to this city. The man gives his name as William Moore, of Columbus, Ohio. He claims he traded a gold watch to some man on the street here Saturday for the wheel. The bicycle was found at Huntington, where Moore had sold it for $15, and Superintendent Liggett brought it along with him. Yagey identified it as his wheel. Moore is in the police station awaiting trial.

CREMATORY TESTED.

A Hiccup Circuses Consumed in a Short Time.

The Crematory in Lindenwood Cemetery Has Been Completed—In Construction and Now at Works.

The new crematory which has just been completed in Lindenwood cemetery, was given a test yesterday afternoon in the presence of a number of persons, including the builder, Dr. L. M. Davis, of Lancaster, Pa.; Architect Wing, members of the cemetery association, newspaper men and other visitors.

The crematory stands on the side of a small hill, about in the center of the cemetery, and the building that has been erected for it is a very handsome little structure of the Roman style of architecture, built entirely of stone.

The company's engineer, assisting to the test made yesterday. The construction of the furnace and the retort are of much interest. The furnace is situated at the west end of the building, immediately at the rear of the retort in which the body to be cremated is placed. The fuel used is coke, which is burned in a white heat. The retort is built of fire clay and in shape is very similar to an ordinary bake oven in a bakery. The heat that is furnished by the coke fire is obliged to make three complete circuits around the retort before it reaches the chimney, and this insures that every particle of smoke will be consumed, as well as the gases which are liable to escape. A strong draft is furnished by means of the large chimney and four one and one half inch pipes, which are in the furnace.

Yesterday the furnace was fired up at 10 o'clock in the morning and at 1 o'clock it was hot enough to make a test. However, it was delayed until 4:30 in order that the interested parties might be present.

A carcass of a large sheep was used in making the test. It was placed in a long tray together with a number of big, heavy beef bones. When Dr. Davis gave the word, the tray was shoved into the open door of the retort, where a heat of 1,500 degrees swelled it. Even before the tray had fully entered the retort the body was on fire and was being consumed. The carcass was propped in a cloth that had been saturated with alum water. This alum water holds the fibres of the cloth intact in spite of the fact that the cloth is instantly consumed by the intense heat, and when the incineration has been completed the remaining particles of the cloth can be removed and the ashes of the body taken out.

The cremation of the sheep was completed before 8 o'clock last night and the heavy beef bones were reduced to ashes in a short time afterward.

Dr. Davis said to THE SENTINEL reporter that the time required for the incineration of a human body varies. If the bones in the body are hard and full of earthy matter it takes longer than when they contain a large amount of animal matter. The usual time, he says, is from one and a half to two hours.

The cost of this crematory is about $3,000, of which $1,800 was paid for the furnace and retort. It is the first crematory ever built in the state of Indiana.

It might be of interest to state here that there is in this city a compact of some of the most prominent citizens who have agreed that when their bodies have ceased to depend on it shall be by the process of incineration. This compact was formed several years ago and since that time one of the members has died. His body was taken to a crematory in another city and cremated. It was largely due to the influence of these gentlemen that the new crematory was erected in Lindenwood cemetery.

Our County's Farmers.

Elsewhere in THE SENTINEL today we publish the program for the farmers' institute for Allen county, which is to be held in this city on the 16th and 17th of December, and we hope the meeting will be largely attended, for it will without doubt be interesting and instructive, for such have been the characteristics of these meetings in the past.

The subjects discussed by prominent farmers, we notice by glancing over the program published, include such topics as "How to Restore and Maintain the Fertility of the Soil," "Cultivation of the Apple for Profit," "Substitutes for Hay," "Strawberry Culture," "The Hen for Profit," "Can We Raise Hogs and Corn and Retain the Fertility of the Soil," and others of a similar nature, all of which, being talked and written about by men who are practical agriculturists, can not fail in bringing out much valuable information on these themes and result to those present in making their avocations more profitable.

Men in other occupations in life, the manufacturer, the merchant, the lawyer, the doctor, the editor, the mechanic, the author, the railroader, all meet for the interchange of ideas looking to the advancement of each in their respective callings, and it is right and proper and beneficial that the farmer should do so, and we are glad to see these annual gatherings of the farmers increasing and extending into every state of the union. They will result in spreading intelligence and raising the standard of farming wherever they are held, and when this is done the whole country will be benefited. Education in farming pays. It makes a man a better farmer and it enables him to get more and better products out of the soil and benefits him in every way, socially and financially.

The farmer is an important factor in this nation of ours. He is an important factor in our state and county. The products that he raises from the soil are the necessaries of life and his prosperity is therefore vital to the welfare of the whole people. City, standing as a nation, state and county is largely due to our agriculture. No nation or community has ever prospered that ignored this element of its growth and vitality, and in all history the influences that led to the improvement of the agricultural classes have been the influences that caused the prosperity of those nations, and in this state the farmer is educated in his special calling, where one exchanges ideas with another as to the best systems to be pursued, are to be encouraged and they should be attended by every farmer who desires to obtain the best results from his work.

"The harvest is past, the summer is ended," and now is the time for intelligent thought and action among farmers, and there is no better aid to this line of agricultural progress than the farmers' institute. The season for their sessions has begun and they will, in their enlarged and ennobled form, reach nearly every county in Indiana, stimulating thought and leading on to a more enlightened and improved stage of agriculture.

In his paper, the Wabash Plaindealer, of last evening, Chas. A. Hass announces the candidacy of Hon. Warren G. Sayre, of that city, for the republican nomination for governor, and prints a strong editorial endorsing him. Mr. Sayre was formerly speaker of the house. He makes the ninth candidate now in the field for the republican nomination for governor, and he will have the solid support of the Eleventh congressional district.

The revival meetings which are being held by Dr. Chapman are attracting much attention all over the city, creating such a spiritual awakening as Fort Wayne has never before experienced, and they will result in great good. Dr. Chapman is full of the power of the Holy Ghost and has a wonderful faculty of impressing this spirit upon his audiences.

EX-SENATOR EDMUNDS tells republicans that "the tariff had better be left alone." He says that the commercial and industrial interests of the country are very sensitive on the subject of change, and that the revenue should be increased in some other way, not by higher duties. In taking this position Senator Edmunds is right.

SENATOR ALLISON'S platform as a candidate for the republican presidential nomination is very simple and has the great merit of candor and dignity. He says: "I want it, but I shall not assemble for it."

New Applications of Electricity.

Professor A. E. Dolbear gives in The Cosmopolitan Magazine some interesting information as to recent uses to which electricity has been put. It is known already that the electric current is employed in blacksmiths. Professor Dolbear tells us it may be used with equal advantage to whiten discolored teeth and sallow skin. The basis of the new use is the well known fact that when an electric current is sent through a liquid more or less chemical decomposition takes place. If the liquid be a solution of some metal, the solution will be destroyed, and the pure metal will be deposited on the surface toward which the current flows. This is the method by which electroplating is done.

The electricity parts the molecules of metal from their solution and pushes them, by actual physical motion, in the direction of the current.

If two fluids are put into jars, and one of the jars is sufficiently porous, a strong electrical current will drive the particles of the one liquid into those of the other through the porous substance. Applying this principle by skillful supervision devised for the purpose, decolorizing fluids may be driven into teeth and skin. The decolorizer, whatever it may be, is placed upon the surface that needs whitening. Then an electrical current is applied to it, and the decolorizer is thus driven in through the skin or through the enamel of teeth without doing any injury.

If this discovery be really practicable, there will be no need in future of anybody's having either unsightly looking teeth or skin.

A Happy Thought.

A Washington club has a "professional entertainer." When out of town friends pawn upon busy men at the club and request the rights to be shown them and to be invited, waited and taken to Mount Vernon and to see the president's country house, as well as the black brothers of George Washington in the Smithsonian institution, the busy man introduces the out of town friend to the professional entertainer. The entertainer takes the guest off the busy man's hands. All the honors expected to be done by the busy man are bestowed on the guest by the professional in the graceful and accomplished manner known everything—even some stories that are less than five years old. The busy man attends to his duties; the out of town friend is delighted, and never suspects he has been dumped off upon the entertainer. The entertainer himself gets sufficiently well paid for his services, and all are happy.

Why should there not be professional entertainers for private families too? When weary and stupid guests and relatives come to sit—out on us, the expenditure of brain force in trying to entertain them is enough to give one a fit of nervous prostration. If the professional entertainer could only be got at and relieve the unfortunate victim, he would be a blessed boon indeed. The entertainers must be of both sexes to fit all cases. And if people paid this benevolent person according to the value of his services he would be a millionaire in five years.

It is certainly to the best interests of England to cultivate a thorough good understanding with the United States.

For the filling: Chop fine ½ cup of currants, ½ cup of dates, mix with the well beaten whites of 2 eggs and ½ cup of sugar. The top of cake may be frosted, if liked.—Mrs. S. B.

POTATOES A L'ANNA.

Pare four good sized potatoes. Cut them into blocks the size of dice. Put two tablespoonfuls of butter in a baking dish, put the potatoes in and stir them, so that each piece of potato will be thoroughly covered with the butter. Dust over a teaspoonful of salt, and a saltspoon of pepper. Bake in a moderately hot oven for at least three quarters of an hour. If any of the butter remains in the pan, carefully remove the potatoes from it, and serve in a hot dish.—Professional.

ORANGE PUFF.

Put into a saucepan four tablespoonfuls sugar, three of flour, one of farina, add gradually a half pint of milk, stir over the fire until thick, then strain it into a saucepan, and add one tablespoonful butter. Stir again over the fire until it leaves the sides of the pan like cream puff batter. Stand aside until cool, then add grated rind of one orange, and yolks of four eggs. Beat very briskly, then stir in the well-beaten whites, and bake in a moderately quick oven, in souffle cups or paper cases, twenty minutes. Do not over bake, as all souffles will fall more quickly when over baked than when under done. Serve at once.—Professional.

CHARMER OF RABBITS.

Take any cold pieces of rabbits, chop fine, and measure; to every half pint allow one-half as much stock. Put it over the fire. Rub together one tablespoonful butter and one of flour, add it to the hot stock. Stir until thick, add rabbit, a teaspoonful onion juice, half teaspoonful salt, and a dash of curry powder. Cut slices of bread into round cakes two inches in diameter. Toast them, put on each a tablespoonful of the rabbit mixture, with a knife smooth it to a little mound, dip each quickly in egg, and then in crumbs, and fry in smoking hot fat. Do not have the fat too deep, or they will turn over; fry brown side down; serve hot.—Professional.

STUFFED APPLES.

Shell and blanch twenty-four almonds. Chop them fine. Seed and chop a quarter of a pound of raisins. Measure and pick over a half cup of dried currants. Put the almonds, raisins and dried currants into a saucepan, add a half cup of water, a half cup of sugar, with a teaspoonful of lemon juice, and the grated rind of the lemon. Simmer gently for at least thirty minutes. In the meantime, pare and core six large apples, keeping them perfectly whole. Stand them in a baking pan, sprinkle over about two tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar, and bake slowly until the apples are tender and slightly brown. Take from the oven, put them in a glass dish. Now, boil the fruit remains and syrup together for at least ten minutes; that is, boil it hard. Take it from the fire, fill in the spaces from which the cores of the apples have been taken, and baste the syrup over the outside. Stand away to cool. When ready to serve, heap around the outside of the dish, beating it up towards the apples, cream whipped to a stiff froth. Dust the whole with powdered sugar, and serve. —Professional.

NAPOLEON SAT IN IT.

ONE OF THE EMPEROR'S SEVEN THRONES NOW HERE.

He Is Into a Museum of San Francisco —How It Was Saved From Destruction During Franco-Prussian War by a French Patriot.

IT is recorded of Napoleon III. that he soon reconciled himself to a throne was nothing but a pile of lumber with gilt and a few sumptuous draperies. Those who have a penchant for attributing to the utterances of great men meanings than those conveyed in their words say his idea was that a throne requires something more than royal vestments to maintain its majesty. Whatever Napoleon thought of thrones it is not hard to believe at he was fond of them.

He seven scattered around in different parts of France, no that wherever he is he would be within easy reach of one, and would thus be enabled to appear in the dignity of state with all its pomp before his subjects, and notwithstanding those seven, it is believed of him that he had an abnormal ambition to gather unto himself more—even though they were the thrones of other princes.

One of these seven thrones—or, to be more correct, the chair which formed the greater part of the throne—is now in this country, far from the land of its creation. It is securely packed away, and in a freight car is making the long journey to San Francisco. There it will go into a museum filled with other antiquities, never again to have the honor of resting a real live emperor.

After the close of the California State Midwinter International Exhibition, which was held in San Francisco, a permanent museum, as a memorial of the exposition, was established. Michael H. de Young, who was president of the exposition, undertook the task of obtaining curios for the museum. The Napoleonic fever being at its height, he secured many relics of the emperor, among them the medals exhibited at the World's Fair.

Needing rest after his arduous labors of the winter, Mr. de Young went to Europe, and in Paris he struck a veritable mine of good things in the way of curios. But most of all he prizes this chair, as to the genuineness of which he was satisfied by Bernard Franck, the well known French expert on all matters pertaining to the late empire.

As far as can be learned it was the chair which graced the Chateau St. Cloud, or that was at Compiegne. As the story runs, it was taken away during the Franco-Prussian war, just before the appearance of the Prussians, by a patriotic Frenchman, who was determined that the chair in which the emperor had seated himself should never be desecrated by falling into the hands of the foes of France. To insure its safety he stored it away in the cellar of his house, and in the consequent turmoil and excitement he forgot all about it.

It was not until after his death, a few years ago, that his relatives, in searching the house, found the chair, and, thinking from what might be formed rubbish for nearly a quarter of a century, it was badly worm-eaten and otherwise soiled; but the family made inquiries, learned the value of the discovery, and, having no use for a throne of their own, sold it to a dealer in antiquities for a nice little sum. The dealer had it reupholstered faithfully in every detail, after which it was when Mr. de Young found it.

Any one who has noticed the two handsome chairs which are at the entrance to the winter garden in the Metropolitan Waldorf will hardly need a description of Mr. de Young's treasure, save the New York Herald. They are reproductions of the chair used by the emperor at Fontainbleau. This is also true in all respects, save that the front supports are of plain carved wood, instead of resting the form of cavaliers. It stands about three and one-half feet high, the framework being of carved oak, with heavy gilding, after the fashion of the day. The back shows a circular wreath of oak leaves in the wood, being about two feet in diameter. The center is upholstered in rich crimson velvet, handsomely embroidered with heavy gold thread, with a big N standing out in prominent relief. The seat is of the same crimson velvet, with gold thread embroidery, and on each side, on top of the arm posts, is a heavy globe of satin wood, on which probably Napoleon often rested his hands while listening to the artful flattery of his courtiers. On the wood of the seat, at the back of the frame, is engraved the name of the maker, which is taken as a strong proof of the chair's genuineness. Mr. de Young, however, was careful to get the advice of several experts before purchasing. It came across the sea in the same steamer that carried him, was carefully packed under his eyes, and he saw it safely stored away in the car which will soon land it on the Pacific Coast, where it will gladden the eyes of curio loving San Franciscans.

Women Can Keep Strong and Well by Taking

Dr. Greene's Nervura Blood and Nerve Remedy.

The advent of woman into new occupations brings a new era into her life. Heretofore she had only to encounter the strain of household duties. Broader fields bring to her increased burdens. Her naturally sensitive organism is subject to a new nervous tension. How does it affect her? It brings exhaustion to her nervous energies. It brings weakness and loss of vitality. It adds new dangers to her condition. What does it do to future generations? It robs them of the robust vitality and nervous force they ought to have. It starts them in life the weaker physically and mentally. The result of this condition of her nervous system, weakened and over-wrought as it is. It then becomes a vital subject of the welfare of the women—one to which the thoughtful are already giving attention, one of serious moment to all.

It is a duty each woman owes to herself and her children. Given only to household duties that burden, see to it that your over-worked nerves are righted and your exhausted strength regained. Don't delay a single hour. If you are a woman wage earner in any occupation and are over-worked in the duties which weigh upon you, see to it that you keep your nervous force up to the proper standard, that you renew your strength and keep up your power to work. It means health and happiness to you; health for you to do your work and happiness to make life worth living. Attend to it at once.

You have only to use the help nature has provided in that wonderful restorer of health and strength, that powerful invigorator of brain, nerve and body, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. Read what it did for Mrs. F. Cohen, of 153 Pacific St., Newark, N. J.

"I had been sick for three years," writes Mrs. Cohen, "weak, nervous and run down until I didn't care whether I lived or died. A friend of mine advised me to try Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and it has made a new woman of me today. I had the rheumatism in one of my legs, and I could not rest at night until I tried Dr. Greene's Nervura, and I can truly say I am entirely cured. I feel twice as young and all my friends say I don't look like the same person. Nervura has certainly done me a wonderful sight of good."

It is not a patent medicine, but the prescription of the most successful living specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th St., New York City. He has the largest practice in the world, and this grand medical discovery is the result of his vast experience. The great reputation of Dr. Greene is a guarantee that his medicine will cure, and the fact that he can be consulted by anyone, at any time, free of charge, personally or by letter, gives absolute assurance of the beneficial action of this wonderful medicine.

WAS A GREAT GENERAL

The death of Gen. Mahone removes from Washington one of the most picturesque personalities ever known at the national capital—a distinctive man with a foot as small as a girl's and a head topped with a sombrero that dwarfed it and left nothing of the face to view but the piercing eyes and the immense cigar protruding from the mouth; a dandy with frilled shirt and cuffs and with the neatest of boots, but a man devoid of fear and of the keenest of minds. As a soldier, Lee valued him as one of the best of generals, and as a politician he dominated Washington during his career there as senator, and left public life the best hated of man. Gen. Mahone had many of the characteristics of the old-time Virginian, but, as a matter of fact, there was not a drop of Virginian blood in his veins. He was a pure-blooded Irishman.

GEN. MAHONE.

THE SOLDIERS' HOME.

The Cottage That One Family is Asked to Build.

In establishing the State Soldiers' Home at Lafayette, the plan of the legislature was to appropriate only money sufficient to erect the general buildings, leaving to counties and to charitably disposed societies and individuals the work of erecting cottages, in which the larger proportion of the members of the home will be cared for. These cottages will each bear an inscription, showing by what county or by whom they were erected. It is believed that the erection of the home will relieve a county the size of Allen from an expenditure of several hundred dollars now annually expended for the relief of disabled and destitute soldiers through the offices of the various township trustees, and, if this be so, every county in the state should willingly bear the expense of erecting at least one cottage.

Nearly every county in the state has signified its intention to fall in with the plan of the legislature and several of them have already taken action through their boards of county commissioners. Wabash county is the first to actually get its appropriation into the hands of the board of trustees and last week a committee representing the county made the selection of lot in or the plat of the home grounds, for the location of their county cottage.

At the request of persons interested here at Fort Wayne, lot 82 has been temporarily reserved for Allen county, until such time as our county commissioners can act in the matter. It is the desire of the very best interested in the entire plat and ought to have a handsome cottage, such as this county is likely to build, to cost $1,000 or more.

The general government pays the state of Indiana $100 yearly for every soldier cared for in a state soldiers' home, and as the state appropriates only $125 per year, the cost to the state is only $25 annually for each soldier thus supported.

FINE EXHIBIT

Given by the Fort Wayne Art School.

Between the hours of 3 and 7 o'clock Saturday afternoon, the students of the Fort Wayne Art school received their friends at their studio on East Lewis street. On the west side of the room the oil studies showed well on a background of dark red, while the east side was devoted to water colors, which were displayed on a background of nile green. Moves of black and white work filled the corners, the principal studies being drawings from life by Miss Norah Hamilton, executed while under the instructions of Kenyon Cox. Among a number of compositions were The Annunciation, Elijah fed by the Ravens, Judith and Holofernes, Supper at Emmaus, and several decorative studies. While in New York, Miss Hamilton was for several months a student of Robert Weld, teacher of the impressionistic school, and a study in oil of the head of a young girl, painted under his instructions, is especially worthy of mention. A number of oil sketches of local and Mackinac scenery were much admired.

Several portraits of Fort Wayne people occupied a prominent place; also a portrait of a Mackinac Indian, who is said to be over 100 years old. On a screen was displayed the work of the Sketch club, consisting of pencil, pen and ink and charcoal studies from life. A number of charcoal studies done by the drawing class in Mackinac this summer made an interesting group.

Some capital pen and ink sketches by Indianapolis students were a great addition to the exhibition. They also sent some very creditable charcoal and water color studies. The Fort Wayne students had many water color sketches, flowers, small marine scenes, and summer landscape were their favorite subjects.

Russian tea and wafers were served during the afternoon by Misses Bosler, Griffith, Dyer, Hamilton and Wheeler. Owing to the inclemency of the weather on Saturday, the studio will be open to visitors tomorrow and Saturday afternoons.

A RELIABLE PILE CURE.

The Pyramid Pile Cure is the safest and surest pile cure on the market, because it contains no mineral poisons nor opium nor cocaine, but can be used with absolute safety and certainty of cure.

Many physicians are now using the Pyramid Pile Cure in their practice of operations, being painless convenient to use, and the patient can attend to his daily occupation while the cure is being made, as it is used at night and no additional treatment is necessary.

Dr. Kendall says the Pyramid Pile Cure will prove a blessing to mankind, when it is remembered that heretofore a surgical operation was considered the only cure with all the danger to life, torture pain and an expense of from ten to one hundred dollars, to say nothing of the possible return of the trouble. The Pyramid Pile Cure is sold by druggists at 50 cents and $1.00 and does the work quickly and safely.

A book on cause and cure of piles will be mailed free by addressing Pyramid Co., Albion, Mich.

GOOD NEWS, IF TRUE.

The Keystone and Columbian Trains to be Restored,

And Known as Nos. 15 and 16—An Apparently Well Founded Rumor Comes From Pittsburg.

Considerable interest centers about a rumor which is being industriously circulated today to the effect that the morning time table of the Pennsylvania company will include two new through trains to be known as Nos. 15 and 16. As the story goes, these new trains will be exact reproductions of the famous Nos. 22 and 25, known as the "Keystone" and the "Columbian" express trains, which ran over the Pittsburg road during the world's fair year, and which are now running between New York and Chicago via the Panhandle route. The rumor originated in Pittsburg from a railroader who claimed to have received the news from two of the officials whom he heard talking about the matter. The Pennsylvania company usually announces its winter time card early in the season, but this fall it has not yet been announced and nobody at this point is able to say when it will be ready to be given to the public. This delay is taken as evidence that radical changes are to be made.

BIG BALOON CAR AXLES.

Yesterday the Bass Foundry and Machine works booked an order from the Illinois Central Railway company for 1,000 car axles. This, with an order received a few days ago, makes 1,400 car axles now contracted for and means over-time in the blacksmith shops and possibly another gang of workmen. The machine and boiler departments of the great works are also filling up again with orders, the latest being from the Brown, Bonell Iron company, of Youngstown, Ohio, for a rolling mills engine of 300 horse power. The order was telegraphed in by Mr. J. E. Noble, last evening, and was accompanied by the statement that he was figuring upon the boiler plant also, with fair prospects of closing the contract soon.

THE NICKEL PLATE REMODELS ON OF A SUPT.

Charles Vandermar, switchman in the Nickel Plate yards, went down to Knox last Friday night to hunt a couple of days, and he had more ill luck than is usually the lot of amateur huntsmen. Saturday it rained continuously and Charlie spent the day in a sheep pen, watching the clouds roll by and wondering if they never would cease wraping. Sunday dawned bright and clear and renting a $2-a-day dog, Charlie started for the hunting grounds, about four miles distant. Near the place of destination the hunter and his dog had to cross a railroad track and a passenger train which was passing at that moment struck the animal and crippled him so that he could not walk. Charlie carried the poor canine back to Knox and shortly after boarded a train and came home, thoroughly disgusted with everything in general and his hunting experience in particular. Altogether different was the experience of Engineer Wash Frase and Fireman John Sathurn, who were hunting in the vicinity of Hadley. They started a rabbit in a piece of woods pasture, and so excited were they that they forgot all about the guns which each carried, and dropping the pieces, started in pursuit of the frightened cotton tail, which was soon captured. Then they tied the poor thing to a bush and shot him to death. Early in the chase their intelligent hunting dog became disgusted and refused to take part in the sport.

In all probability an action for the dissolution of the firm of Giesselbrum & Schnitzwesser will soon be filed in the superior court.

For some time Mr. Schnitzwesser has not been satisfied with the profits of the business, and he was led to suspect that Mr. Giesselbrum was knocking down and dragging out the contents of the till. He set to work to detect his partner, and, by stealthily counting the cash before and after taking, he soon verified his suspicions.

Yesterday morning Mr. Schnitzwesser counted the money in the till as soon as he opened the store, and found it contained about $40. A few minutes later Mr. Giesselbrum arrived, opened the drawer and took somecoin, with the remark:

"I'm going out to get a shave."

Mr. Schnitzwesser chuckled to the till, counted the money and found that his partner had taken about $25.

"Shay, Giesselbrum!" he shouted. "You'd better come back and take the rest and get a hair cut."—San Francisco Post.
